ON THE COVER

Senior Chad Carson and graduate student Kyle Young are on the cover of today's Homecoming program. Carson and Young were both first-team Academic All-Americans a year ago and are bidding to do so again in 2001. Young has a chance to become just the second offensive lineman in college football history to become a three-time first-team Academic All-American

CLEMSON TIGER FOOTBALL

Chad Carson 6

Chad Carson, the first-team weakside linebacker for the Tigers, is the epitome of a college student-athlete. However, you don't hear much about the Chad Carson's of college football. He is a great competitor in the classroom as well as on the field. For him to excel the way he does both in academics and athletics is a true testimony to his character, maturity and discipline.

Kyle Young 10

"Kyle Young is pretty much the truest Clemson player and fan all rolled in to one. The boy bleeds Clemson," said Tiger quarterback Woodrow Dantzler. "When you hear him talk about Clemson and play for Clemson, all you see is pride. His is a hometown boy who followed in the steps of his grandfather, Ed McClendon, and his older brother, Will, in playing football for the Tigers.

North Carolina Series 15

North Carolina's goal line stand in 1980 brought victory against Clemson in Death Valley, but the Tigers got revenge in 1981 with a 10-8 victory that paved the way to a National Championship. Clemson went on to win in 1982, 83 and 84 thanks to the play of William Perry. The Tar Heels were ranked in the top 20 in three of the four games during that time.

James Trapp 64

The former defensive back at Clemson (1989-92) became the latest Tiger to get a Super Bowl ring. He was a member of the Baltimore Ravens that defeated the N.Y. Giants last year to win the Super Bowl. It was the second World Championship for Trapp who claimed the World Championship in the 200 meter dash while at Clemson.

1981 Revisited 107

After a 10-8 win over North Carolina in Chapel Hill the first weekend of November, the Tigers had just one more obstacle to the ACC Championship and another to a perfect regular season. Maryland came to Death Valley and then the Tigers had to travel to Columbia to take on South Carolina. With the pair of victories, the team was extended an invitation to play in the Orange Bowl.

Clemson War Heroes .. 120

The United States was preparing to enter a war it had tried to avoid. After the events of Dec. 7, 1941, Clemson cadets packed their bags and said their good-byes. Before the war there were 3,500 cadets on campus, but only about 300 remained once the war started. Bill Hunter was a member of the football team in 1942 and then went off to flight school after graduation.

Today's Game

Dantzler Dazzling Again

Clemson quarterback's performance in the Tigers 45-37 victory in Raleigh last week is hard to put into words. It was the greatest combination of rushing and passing for a Clemson football player in history and ranks among the best in college football history.

A look to the NCAA record book tells us that only one player in one game has ever had at least 300 yards passing and 200 yards rushing in the same game. Washington's Marques Tuiasosopo had 302 yards passing and 207 rushing against Stanford on Oct. 30, 1999, the only player in history to achieve the 300/200 in the same game.

Last week, Dantzler passed for 333 and had 184 net yards rushing. Had it not been for two sacks in the second quarter, one of 13 yards and another of 11, Dantzler would have joined Tuiasosopo in that exclusive club. As it was, Dantzler's performance was the fifth best in ACC history in terms of total offense, and a Clemson record. The ACC mark is 554 yards of total offense by Rusty LaRue for Wake Forest against N.C. State in 1995.

Dantzler did more than just pick up yardage, he led the Tigers to six touchdowns. He ran for two and passed for four, and the six touchdowns combined broke the Clemson single game record that had stood since 1947. Dantzler tied the Clemson single game record for touchdown passes in a single game, a mark he now co-owns with his backup, Willie Simmons.

It was Dantzler's top passing game as a Tiger, and in many ways the best by any Clemson quarterback. The graduate student from Orangeburg, SC completed 23-27 passes for 333 yards and four touchdowns. His passing efficiency rating of 237.6 was a Clemson record for a minimum of 20 attempts. His stats included a 79-yard pass to freshman Airese Currie, the longest pass play for the Tigers in five years.

Dantzler achieved the 517 yards of total offense one game (two weeks) after gaining 418 yards in Clemson's thrilling 47-44 win over a ninth-ranked Georgia Tech team in Atlanta. Obviously it is the top total offense figure for consecutive games in Clemson history.

Here is a list of Clemson Records Dantzler Set in the win at N.C. State:

- Single game passing efficiency (Min 20 attempts)—237.58
- Single game total offense—517 yards (333 passing, 184 rushing)
- Single game touchdown responsibility—6
- Tied single game touchdown passes—4
- Single game completion percentage (min 20 attempts)—.851
- Career total offense—6,874
- Career total offense vs. same team—1127 vs. N.C. State

Below is a chart that documents Dantzler's stats the last two games

Category	vs. GT	vs. NCS	Avg.
Total Offense	418	517	467.5
Passing yards	254	333	293.5
Rushing yards	164	184	174
Passing (Cm-Att)	18-32	23-27	20.5-29.5
TDs Rushing	2	2	2
TDs Passing	2	4	3
Passing Efficiency	143.6	237.7	186.6
Yards/Play	7.33	10.34	8.74

Dantzler Ranked in Top 25 in Five Categories

Woodrow Dantzler is ranked in the top 25 in the nation in five different statistical categories, including second in two important areas. The Tiger signal caller, who now owns 30 school records, is second in the country in total offense, second in completion percentage, sixth in scoring responsibility, 12th in passing efficiency and 25th in rushing. That's right, 25th in rushing.

Dantzler is the only player in the nation ranked in the top 25 of both passing efficiency and rushing.

Dantzler trails only Florida quarterback Rex

Grossman in passing efficiency and is second only to Wes Counts of Middle Tennessee State in completion percentage. Counts is 114-159 so far this year for a 71.7 completion percentage. Dantzler has hit on 102-148 for a 68.92 percentage.

Dantzler has gained 516 yards on the ground for an average of 103.2 yards per game. He is second among quarterbacks nationally on a per game basis to Keith Boyea of Air Force, who has averaged 111 yards per game through five contests.

No Clemson player has ever ranked in the top 25 in the nation in five different categories for the course of the season. Dantzler was 21st in passing efficiency and 25th in scoring responsibility last year. Keith Adams (1999), Tony Horne (1997), Nelson Welch (1992) and Chris Gardocki (1989) are the only players to rank in the top 25 in three different areas in the same year. Dantzler is trying to become the first Clemson quarterback to rank in the top 25 in the country in total offense since Steve Fuller finished 21st in 1978.

Dantzler on Pace for 2,000/1,000 Season

Clemson quarterback Woodrow Dantzler has averaged 343 yards per game in terms of total offense. That is more than 100 yards per game ahead of his own Clemson single season pace of 241.6 yards per game set last year.

Dantzler is doing it with balance between the running game and the passing game. He has 516 yards rushing and 1,199 passing for 1,715 total. That is an average of 103.2 yards per game rushing and 239.8 yards per game passing. That is a pace to reach 2,638 yards passing and 1,135 yards rushing for the course of an 11-game season.

If Dantzler can keep the pace up he would become the first quarterback in Division I college football history to have 2,000 yards passing and 1,000 yards rushing in the same season. He had 947 rushing and 1,691 passing last season during the regular season. If he is to achieve the distinction he will have to do it in the regular season as NCAA records do not count bowl games.

The closest to achieve the milestone is Brian Mitchell of Louisiana-Lafayette, who had 1,311 rushing and 1,966 passing in 1989.

Homecoming Success

Clemson faces North Carolina for Homecoming today. The Tigers are 26-2-2 since 1971 on Homecoming with the only losses coming to Georgia Tech in 1989 and Virginia in 1997. The first homecoming game at Clemson took place on Sept. 30, 1922 when Centre defeated Clemson at Riggs Field, 21-0. Clemson has celebrated Homecoming every year since 1922 with the exception of the 1930 and 1938 seasons. Clemson has a 56-18-3 record on Homecoming over the years, a .747 winning percentage. Clemson has outscored the opposition 1,644-1,010 in those previous 77 games, an average victory of 21-13.

Clemson is 4-1 lifetime against North Carolina on Homecoming. Clemson gained victory in 1960 (24-0), 1962 (17-6), 1995 (17-10) and 1999 (31-20). The only loss came in 1964 by a 29-0 score. The star for the Tigers the last time the two teams met on homecoming was a reserve quarterback named Woodrow Dantzler. Dantzler came off the bench in the second period to lead the Tigers to a 31-20 victory.

North Carolina Update

North Carolina has been the comeback story of college football within the 2001 season. The Tar Heels, coached by former North Carolina player John Bunting, lost its first three games of the year, all to teams currently in the top 20 of the nation. North Carolina lost away from home to defending National Champion Oklahoma, 41-27, at unde-

Dantzler put his name next to 6 records last week at N.C. State. Among those were 6 touchdowns and 517 yards of total offense.

Today's Game

feated Maryland 23-7, and at Texas 44-14.

Since then, North Carolina has defeated Florida State, 41-9, won at N.C. State 17-9, defeated East Carolina 24-21 and last week downed Virginia 30-24. The win over Florida State was just the third ACC loss for the Seminoles since they joined the conference in 1992.

The top player on the North Carolina team is on defense. The top player on the Clemson team is on offense. That will be an interesting matchup in today's game in Death Valley. North Carolina's Julius Peppers could be the top selection in the NFL draft this coming spring. He has an incredible 17 tackles for loss, 8.5 sacks, six passes defended and two interceptions this year. His pursuit of Dantzler will be worth the price of admission.

But, North Carolina has some other outstanding defensive players, a prime reason opponents have scored just 15.8 points per game over the last four games. David Thornton is the top tackler with 74 stops in seven games, including seven tackles for loss. Quincy Monk, another linebacker, has 65 tackles, while Dexter Reid has 53 stops and two interceptions. Mike Waddell has 10 passes defended, among the top figures in the ACC.

The offense has picked up the pace of late, including scoring 30 points against Virginia last week. North Carolina uses two quarterbacks. Ronald Curry, along with Peppers a member of the North Carolina basketball team that played at Clemson last year, has throw for 563 yards and three touchdowns. He is North Carolina's career leader in total offense.

Backup Darian Durant has been more productive statistically, completing .593 of his passes for 852 yards and eight scores. He also has 116 yards rushing, ahead of Curry's 100 yards. Regardless, both quarterbacks can run and throw. Andre Williams is the top ball carrier with 402 yards and three touchdowns. Kory Bailey has 23 receptions, the same total as Bosley Allen, a gifted 6-3 junior. Allen is also among the best kick returners in the ACC.

Offense Superb Against Top Defenses

Clemson's offense has been performing at a high level of efficiency over the last two games, in fact an unparalleled level for consecutive games. Add to that the fact that both games have been on the road make the production especially remarkable.

Over the last two weeks Clemson has averaged 27.5 first downs, 293.5 yards passing and 241 yards rushing. The Tigers have averaged 534.5 yards of total offense and 6.56 yards per game, not to mention scoring 46 points per game.

Clemson has not achieved these stats against inferior defenses. N.C. State and Georgia Tech were both ranked in the top 20 in the nation in scoring defense and many other categories heading into their games with Clemson. In six games this year Georgia Tech has given up 98 points and 47 of them are to Clemson.

Clemson scored three times as many points as N.C. State has given up this year against its other four opponents, four times as many points as Tech has given up. N.C. State had given up just 313.8 yards of total offense per game prior to the Clemson game, then the Tigers got 567. Tech has given up just 253.2 per game when not playing Clemson, but the Tigers gained 502 against the Yellow Jackets.

Senior Jovon Bush recorded a career-best eight tackles at N.C. State, the most by a Clemson down lineman this year.

Zachery Approaching 3,000/1,000 Club

Clemson senior running back Travis Zachery is among the best all-around ball carriers in the nation. That is one reason he was listed among the preseason candidates for the Doak Walker Award.

So far this year Zachery has 310 yards rushing and 242 yards receiving, giving him 552 yards from scrimmage. It ranks him fifth in the ACC in all-purpose running. He has had five touchdowns rushing and got his second receiving at N.C. State last Saturday.

Zachery now has 2,792 yards rushing in his career and 885 receiving. No Clemson player in history has had at least 3,000 yards rushing and 1,000 receiving. It is quite a difficult accomplishment, something only three players in ACC history have accomplished. The others to do it are Leon Johnson, a former running back from North Carolina (1993-96), Warrick Dunn of Florida State (1993-96) and Terry Kirby of Virginia (1989-92).

Zachery needs 208 yards rushing and 115 receiving to pull off the 3,000/1,000 double.

Hamilton Approaching Freshman Record

Freshman wide receiver Derrick Hamilton continued his outstanding rookie season with eight catches for 106 yards at N.C. State. The red-shirt freshman from Mullins, SC now has 31 receptions for 339 yards and a touchdown. He needs just three catches against North Carolina to break Terry Smith's freshman record. Smith had 34 catches in 1990. He needs 142 yards to break Smith's freshman receiving yardage mark.

Hamilton's 106 yards receiving at State broke Ray Williams single game freshman receiving yardage mark. Ironically, Williams' mark had been recorded against N.C. State, a 105 yard effort in 1983. Hamilton is now 21st in the nation in receptions per game with 6.2 and is second among freshmen. Hamilton is third in the ACC in receptions per game and is sixth in yardage.

It was a big day for Clemson freshman receivers at N.C. State. In addition to Hamilton's heroics, freshman tight end Ben Hall had three catches for 39 yards and his first college touchdown. Airese Currie had a 79-yard reception in the fourth period from Woodrow Dantzler to put the quarterback over the 300-yard mark for the first time in his career. Clemson freshman receivers caught 12 passes for 224 yards and two scores on the day.

Bush Had Best Game vs. N.C. State

Senior defensive tackle Jovon Bush had his most productive day as a Tiger in the win at N.C. State. The native of Hardeeville, SC is in his senior year, but it is his first year as a starter. He has made the most of it and that included the game in Raleigh. Bush had eight tackles in the game, the most by a Clemson down lineman this year.

His total included two tackles for loss and four quarterback pressures. He ranked third on the Clemson defense in tackles for the day in his 62 plays on defense. Bush now has 25 tackles for the season, more than any other defensive tackle. He also has nine quarterback pressures in his 305 snaps on the field. Bush had 20 tackles as a reserve each of the last two years, meaning he has taken just five games to exceed his previous high tackle total for a season.

Young Defenders Make Contribution at N.C. State

Many young players made a significant contribution to Clemson's defensive effort at N.C. State. With injuries sidelining Kevin Johnson and Nick Eason much of the day, Tommy Bowden had to turn to some inexperienced players to help the Tigers hold off the talented Wolfpack offense. One of the players who made a big contribution was freshman defensive tackle Donnell Washington. He came off the bench to record five tackles, but two were sacks and each thwarted a Wolfpack drive. Washington had a pair of quarterback pressures and a pass broken up in his 50 plays. He had 41 points in the coaching staff's grading system, more than any other Clemson defensive player in the game. Toure Francis was at a cornerback in place of the injured Kevin Johnson. The original walk-on came up big with five tackles and two passes broken up in his 54 plays. He had played just 49 snaps all year prior to Saturday's game. Freshman cornerback Ryan Hemby also made a contribution with an interception and a pass broken up in his 27 snaps.

Chad Carson

By Samantha Carruth

“When I hear the name Chad Carson I think of someone who is very mature, responsible, and disciplined,” said Bill D’Andrea, director of student-athlete enrichment. “He always demonstrates a seriousness about his academics, weightlifting and football. Whatever Chad Carson undertakes, he puts his all into it. If he decided to take up the art of sewing, he would create a masterpiece.”

Chad Carson, the first team weakside linebacker for the Tigers, is the epitome of a college student-athlete. However, you don’t hear much about the Chad Carson’s of college football. He is a great competitor in the classroom as well as on the field. For him to excel the way he does both in academics and athletics is a true testimony to his character, maturity and discipline.

Being a student athlete is not always an easy feat. However, Carson has managed to crush the stereotype that is placed upon some athletes. In Carson’s three years as a Tiger, he has accumulated a 3.93 GPA in biology with a minor in German. He has also been a member of the ACC academic honor roll for the past three years.

Carson spends what free time he has reading books such as “Atlas Shrugged,” a 1,200-page novel about objectivism. He enjoys deep intellectual discussions that revolve around philosophy and science. With dreams of traveling across the world one day he has compiled a list of priority countries to visit. The top three include Europe, Australia and a safari in Africa. Carson and his roommate, Altroy Bodrick, love to cook in their spotless apartment that contains plants, candles and a fish tank.

As you can tell, Carson is a very unique individual. He means something special to each person he has made an impact on during his career as a Tiger. He is an athlete, a scholar, a best friend, a leader, a roll model and a stabilizer. These are just a few of the words that have been used to describe Chad Carson.

“When I hear the name Chad Carson, I think of a quiet guy who keeps to himself, but the first thing that pops in my mind is definitely academics,” said teammate Nick Eason.

Carson credits his high school, Woodward Academy in Atlanta, GA, with teaching him how to study more effectively. In high school Carson was known as a “nerd jock” because of his excellence and interest in academics.

“Attending Woodward Academy prepared me for a rigorous academic schedule. In high school I participated in almost every activity possible, which left me hardly any time at all. I got used to studying about an hour a day, putting it all into one slot of time, so I became accustomed to studying efficiently.”

Carson gained some of his educational values from television at a younger age. As a child he spent his television time viewing educational shows such as “National Geographic” and “The Discovery Channel.”

Carson was honored as a second team Academic All-American in 1999, while garnering first-team honors last season. He is the only active defensive player in the nation who has been first or

Chad Carson has managed to crush the stereotype that is placed upon some athletes. In his three years as a Tiger, he has recorded a 3.93 GPA in biology with a minor in German, a true testimony to his character, maturity and discipline. A two-time Academic All-American, Carson has applied for the prestigious Rhodes Scholarship second-team Academic All-American twice.

“I see Chad Carson as the type of person who would analyze a situation from every conceivable viewpoint, before making the most rational decision imaginable,” said Holli Armstrong, a classmate of Carson’s and sports editor of “The Tiger,” Clemson’s student newspaper.

Upon graduation Carson will have plenty of decisions to make about his future. With effective time management skills Carson has again established himself as an Academic All-American candidate for the 2001 season. Carson has applied for the prestigious Rhodes Scholarship, which would allow him to obtain either a master’s or another undergraduate degree while attending Oxford University in England for two years. But Carson isn’t putting all of his eggs in one basket. He took the MCAT last spring with aspirations of attending medical school.

“I can apply for medical school now that I have taken the MCAT but I plan on waiting to see how it goes with football,” Carson said.

If Carson decides to pursue a career in professional football at the conclusion of the school year, then he could possibly have to make a decision between the Rhodes Scholarship and continuing his career in football.

“Both the Rhodes Scholarship and playing professionally are long shots and neither are easy,” Carson said. “If I happen to get both of them, I will have to make the hardest decision of my life.”

If Carson does earn a Rhodes Scholarship, he will be only the second ACC football player to be honored as a Rhodes Scholar. The only other ACC football player in history to be named a Rhodes Scholar is Rex Adams from Duke University, who earned the scholarship in 1961.

“When I hear the name Chad Carson, I think of a guy who is a hard-nosed worker and very intense,” said assistant strength and conditioning coach John Sisk. “He does a great job with community work and a great job in the weight room. He has a tremendous work ethic and that is why he has been successful.”

The Georgia native is one of the stronger players on the 2001 Clemson team. He is third on the team in the power clean with a 340-pound figure. Carson is slated fourth in the hang clean (363) and the eight strongest overall with 1,589 pounds lifted for the various categories combined.

Last season Carson won the team Iron Man Award on Defense and was the winner of The Solid Rock Award at Linebacker.

When the ladies who attended Tommy Bowden’s Ladies Football Clinic two years ago are reminded of the name Chad Carson, they remember the guy who demonstrated the attire of a Clemson football player.

Carson, a member of LIFE Line, Clemson’s football leadership group, had no clue what he had gotten himself into two years ago, when offered to model the attire of the Clemson football player at the clinic. Before walking out in front of the ladies attending the clinic in full pads, Defensive Coordinator Reggie Herring told him to go out there and show them what a football player wears. Before he knew it, Carson was standing in front of 500 screaming women.

"I still haven't heard the end of it since it happened. I did flex a little to go along with the show and I got a standing ovation at the end. I do not see anything wrong with 500 ladies screaming for you," Carson said.

Carson sends out an apology for not making a second appearance this year at the Ladies' Clinic. The Butkus Award Candidate was planning to participate again, but had to go out of town the week before two-a-day practices began.

"When I hear the name Chad Carson I think of someone I can always turn to for a listening ear or to talk with," said Bodrick. "He is my best friend and I couldn't ask for a better friend than him."

Carson and Bodrick have been roommates for the past two years. Not only are they roommates and defensive teammates, but they are best friends. Their friendship blossomed after rooming together on road trips as freshmen.

The two linebackers decided to live together off campus after determining the qualities they wanted in roommates. The key characteristic for both Carson and Bodrick was cleanliness. Both keep a very clean apartment. Not only are they both neat, but they share the same values about life. Their personalities are not identical, but they compliment each other. Carson and Bodrick like to cook and go out on weekends.

"When hearing the name Chad Carson the first thing that comes to my mind is stability, dependability, accountability, and on top of all of that, a heart of gold," Herring said. "I can not say enough about what he has meant to this program as an ambassador for Clemson Football and Clemson University."

When arriving in Tigertown, the coaches were concerned with Carson's development and how soon he would develop into the type of linebacker Clemson needed to be competitive.

Throughout Carson's first three seasons at Clemson he has proved to the coaches he can withstand the caliber of Division I college football. During Carson's freshman year he played special teams and had only 17 snaps as linebacker. He was a top special team tackler in 1998 with 10 tackles on the season.

During the 1999 season, Carson went from a special team player who played just 17 snaps as a linebacker to third in the ACC with 144 tackles.

"I was thrown in the fire my sophomore season, but it was a good opportunity because it forced me to become experienced fast," Carson said.

Last season Carson ranked fourth in the nation in tackles per game. Carson's 156 tackles ranked seventh best in Clemson history for a single season. He had 22 tackles against Georgia Tech, the most by a Tiger in 2000 and the fourth highest single game total in Clemson history. Entering the 2001 season, Carson had 311 career tackles placing him 12th in Clemson history.

"When I hear the name Chad Carson I think of a great young man, even though I am biased because he is my son," said mom Nancy Carson. "He is all the things you have heard about him. What most people do not know that he has a great sense of humor and loves to pull little jokes on family and friends."

Dr. Nancy Carson recalls one of her son's many prank phone calls. She answered the phone one evening and a strange voice tried to sell her a product, while giving her a difficult time. She was about to hang up when a familiar voice finally identified himself as her son Chad.

Chad grew up in a football family. His dad, Tom Carson, is a former Georgia Tech fullback. Nancy Carson is a dentist and is known around the area for making the orange and purple mouthpiece that Number 46 wears during games. Carson has one brother, Andrew, who plays football at Furman.

Chad's father is given credit for instilling the philosophy that football is a team sport and you have to be a team player. Carson was taught to play for the team and not for himself, and eventually individual honors would arise.

The Carson family has always been supportive in everything their son has participated in, whether it was choosing a college, playing a sport or academics. Carson knows his parents will always provide a listening ear, as well as support throughout the rest of his life.

To many of the younger guys on the team, the name Chad Carson means leader of the defense. This season with the loss of Keith Adams, Carson had to become more of a vocal leader. "I think more of the younger guys have looked to me to be a vocal leader. That guy they look towards for intensity and to say something motivational."

In the past he has provided more of a lead-by-example role. However, in the 2000 season Carson established himself as the permanent captain of Clemson's 2000 defense.

Carson feels that worth ethic is the most important skill to have as an athlete. Football is an everyday sport that includes, not only games, but weight lifting, practice and studying film.

Being a team leader has been a new challenge this season for Carson, but it is a role he has accepted willingly. He works diligently to instill work ethic in younger players.

Chad Carson has touched the lives of many people at Clemson thanks to the different roles he has played in his career as a Tiger. He is not only an Academic All-American, but he is an All-American guy who gives his all at everything he participates in whether it is academics, friendships or football. With such a strong will and desire Chad Carson is well on his way to leaving a remarkable legacy at Clemson University.

"I have always given 100 percent in everything I have done as a Clemson student-athlete," Carson said. "If I go down in Clemson history as a guy who always did his best for the team and tried to make Clemson football better then I will be happy."

Kyle Young

By Louis Garmendia

Kyle Young is pretty much the truest Clemson player and fan all rolled in to one.

Growing up in his Folger Street home that sits in the shadow of Death Valley, it seems like Kyle Young had two options: be a Clemson fan or be a Clemson fan.

"I think the biggest thing is all the memories I have going to Clemson games with my family," he said. "Growing up in a house where Clemson football meant so much you can't even write it down on paper. It's really a special place to me, I guess because it's in my blood."

Literally. Young's grandfather, Ed McClendon, played on Clemson's Cotton Bowl team in 1939. His father is the TV timeout coordinator during home games and his brother Will was a four-year letterman for the Tigers from 1992-95. When not attending home games, watching the Tigers play was a family affair that gave Kyle some of his earliest memories.

"I remember my grandfather lying on the floor because he had a bad back from playing football and just watching Clemson games," he said. "I just remember how intense he was and how intense the rest of my family was watching Clemson football."

He remembers how much fun it was to tailgate, how fun it was to pretend to be a Clemson football player in his backyard and how much fun it was watching some of Clemson's greatest games. So it's no coincidence that he has a blast playing for his beloved Tigers. Offensive linemen take as much a pounding as any athlete in the world, so much of one, that Kyle doubts he wants to play football after this season. The aches and pains have been numerous, but not numerous enough to keep him off the field with the rest of his teammates. He's never missed a game in his career.

"Kyle Young is pretty much the truest Clemson player and fan all rolled in to one. The boy bleeds Clemson," said Tiger quarterback Woodrow Dantzler. "When you hear him talk about Clemson and play for Clemson, all you see is pride. I always tell the story about how in the Peach Bowl he tore his bicep muscle, got it taped up and played a whole half with a torn biceps. That just shows you how much dedication and pride he has in playing for Clemson."

The person I look up to the most is my brother.

Although offensive linemen usually toil in anonymity, Kyle Young has always stood out. Most Clemson fans are familiar with at least some of his accolades. He won a state championship in high school and was named all-state twice. He even pulled off a rare feat for linemen, winning Mr. Football for the state of South Carolina ahead of skill position stars like Dantzler, who attended Orangeburg-Wilkinson. The honors kept coming during college as Kyle has been named All-American both on and off the field. Last season he was just the third Clemson football player to be named an All-American on and off the field in the same year. This year, he has a chance to become just the second ACC player and second collegiate offensive lineman ever to be named a first-team Academic All-American three times. He helped transform a team that was 3-8 in 1998 into a 9-3 team in 2000. The four-year letterman is in his third year as a starter and has already graduated with a degree in secondary education.

But the first Young to receive recognition was Kyle's older brother, Will. He started his final three seasons as an offensive lineman and was named first-team All-ACC in 1995 as well as being named a UPI Honorable Mention All-American. Like, Kyle, he grew up a diehard fan and had always dreamed of playing for Clemson. So when it came time to make his college decision, it was a no-brainer.

"He came out and signed immediately," said Kyle of his brother. "He was Clemson's first commitment. He never looked anywhere else. And if I'd have been the first one (from my family), I wouldn't have looked anywhere else."

Kyle got the advantage of an inside look at the Tiger program through his brother, and it wasn't always rosy. Will played during what Kyle called a "mediocre" time in Clemson history that opened his eyes to both the good and the bad of big time football.

"There were some question marks," he said. "Sometimes you see things you wish you wouldn't have seen. He encouraged me and told me 'Kyle, you don't have to come to Clemson.' So I looked other places. I looked hard, I really did."

"But when it came down to it, I think of my grandfather laying there on the floor watching TV and my mom and dad and the rest of my family. You think of what's running through your blood and in your heart and that's Clemson. That was really the deciding factor for me."

Will's decision to come to Clemson and advice that Kyle should look elsewhere both made the younger sibling appreciate his older brother even more. The two remain very close and are just as comfortable chatting about Clemson as they are just hanging out and saying nothing. It's a relationship that Kyle does not take for granted.

"The person I look up to the most is my brother," he said. "My brother really opened the door. He's opened doors for me my entire life. Seeing the things he did made me think I could come here and do some good things and that's what I wanted to do."

The only bunnies I saw were the ones hopping across the golf course.

Of the numerous awards Kyle Young has received in his career, one of the most recent is the 2001 Anson Mount Scholarship. It honors the best scholar-athlete in NCAA football and it afforded Young an opportunity to fly to Phoenix this summer for a photo shoot with the on-the-field All-American team that would appear in a national magazine. The magazine was Playboy.

"A lot of people think of a certain connotation because it says Playboy," said Young. "But they treated us very well. She wasn't too sure about letting me go, but she did."

She is one of the most important people Kyle has ever met in his Clemson experience. She is Young's fiancée, Jamie Watson. The two will get married in March after meeting more than two years ago, although it took about that long to get them together. Much of Young's success in the classroom and on the field comes from his ability to focus. Although he went on a few dates his first year, he was never looking for a serious girlfriend.

But that didn't stop his older brother from trying. Will was a graduate assistant for the football team until last season and he kept trying to get Kyle to "The person I look up to the most is my brother," Kyle Young said of his brother Will, who played football for the Tigers from 1992-95. His grandfather, Ed McClendon, also played for the Tigers, helping guide Clemson to a Cotton Bowl appearance in 1939. Young's father is the TV timeout coordinator during home games, proving Clemson football is a family affair.

Kyle Young

meet a girl that worked in the recruiting office. Kyle resisted for a year or two when Will took matters into his own one summer. He tricked Kyle into thinking he had mail in the recruiting office, where the girl worked, and Kyle did not realize what was going on until he returned to Will's office to find him on the phone with the girl. After shrugging it off, Kyle was on his way downstairs to the weight room for his workout when a thought popped into his head.

"What if she's the one?" thought Kyle as he descended down the stairs while recounting all the effort his brother had put into matching him up with this one girl. So he raced back upstairs to the recruiting office.

"I'm not sure if I introduced myself but I'm Kyle Young," he said to Jamie Watson. "I think my brother tried to trick me, but I was wondering if you wanted to go out on a date with me sometime?"

After a pause and some blushing from Jamie, Jill Wilks, who also works in the recruiting office, chimed in:

"Oh yeah she would! How about Wednesday? No? Well how about Thursday then?"

Jamie agreed to go out on Thursday, although Kyle doesn't consider their first date to have occurred until a couple of days later. So when he realized that she was definitely the girl for him, Young, who is big on remembering dates and anniversaries, wanted to propose to her exactly two years from their first date. That day was this summer and Kyle was forced to adjust the setting of the proposal. He wanted to do it in Clemson but the two were coming from a concert in Athens, GA, and decided to stop by Jamie's North Augusta home. When it was apparent they would not reach Clemson until late that night, Kyle pleaded with her to stop at a McDonald's on the way so he could use the bathroom. Once inside, Kyle declared he just wanted to stretch his legs and waited as Jamie ordered. Too nervous to eat, Kyle ordered nothing and the two headed back to Kyle's truck, which he made sure he locked so he would have to open the door for her.

"I open the door for her and I get down on a knee in the parking lot of a McDonald's in Washington, GA, a place I've never been to in my life. She looks at me and says 'Whatever. Get up!'" Kyle recalled. "She thinks I'm just joking. Then I pull out the box and her face goes blood red. She starts crying and I start crying and we go home and tell her family."

It was Kyle's second trip to North Augusta in a week. He made the two-hour journey from Clemson to the border town the Wednesday before just to ask her father if it was okay to marry her. As soon as he said yes, Kyle jumped back in his truck and drove another two hours back to Clemson. So it's no surprise that after going through all of this for his wife-to-be, Young considers the trip to Phoenix for the Playboy shoot as just another fun weekend.

"I'm not a ladies man. I'm just not smooth enough," Young said. "Besides, the only bunnies I saw were the ones hopping across the golf course."

Kyle Young has a chance to become just the second offensive lineman in college football history to be named a three-time first-team Academic All-American.

But let's talk about Mac's a little bit more.

Talking Clemson football is one of Young's favorite things to do and there's pretty much only one place to do that: Mac's Drive-In. To say Kyle likes the establishment off of Pendleton Road might not be entirely accurate. He has been going there since before he can remember. He considers Mac, the founder, to be like a grandfather. Pat, one of the workers there, will be in his wedding. When his scooter was approaching 10,000 miles recently, he timed it to make sure that he rolled into Mac's just as it hit 10,000. Among his favorite birthday presents he counts the painting of Mac's given to him by Jamie in which she got the original artist to paint his scooter in the parking lot.

Kyle Young considers three places home: the house he grew up in, First Baptist Church and Mac's. The date with Jamie he considers to be there first? The one where they went to Mac's. His intended setting for the marriage proposal? Mac's. The reason he proposed at a McDonald's?

"If I couldn't do it at Mac's, I was going to do it at McDonald's," he said. "Although they are nowhere near the same, at least they sound similar."

After finishing a Friday night game at nearby Daniel High School, the star center wouldn't go out to parties. He would go to Mac's.

"It would be me and Mac and Pat and (Clemson Associate Sports Information Director) Sammy (Blackman) and we'd be down there till two in the morning," he said. "I'd have to call Mom and tell her but it was alright as long as I was at Mac's. That's the only place I ever went."

"Sammy was afraid to talk to me since I was being recruited and he thought it might be a violation. But I've known Sammy since I was a little kid."

He compares it to the television show Cheers, a place you can go where everybody knows your name. It's a place where he can talk about Clemson football and voice his opinion because he knows he will get opinions left and right. It's a constant reminder why he takes Clemson football so seriously.

"It means so much to everybody I know," he said. "As Clemson football goes, that's the way the community is. If Clemson football is on the rise, the emotions and the attitudes of the town seem high."

So even when his mind drifts to different memories he had growing up in Clemson and why he decided to stay in the only town he's really known, a conversation with Kyle Young always drifts back to one place.

"I knew Clemson was the place for me, especially after looking around some," he said. "It's been the biggest honor for me to play here. But let's talk about Mac's a little bit more."

This is what I want to be a part of and maybe one day some kid will be like, 'Kyle Young played here.'

For someone who has received recognition and awards from just about every media organization in the country, only now does Young garner his highest award.

"I've been in Sports Illustrated, but to finally get my article in the program, that's the one thing I've always wanted," he said. "It's definitely going to be framed in my house for the rest of my life. This is really the culmination of playing at Clemson."

The senior article is one of many Clemson traditions Young is aware of having read game programs growing up. Everyone knows about The Rock, The Hill and Tiger Rag, but how many Clemson fans know about O.K. Pressley, Ralph Jenkins and the dozens of great offensive linemen at Clemson? Young does. He created a scrapbook from old programs and media guides chronicling the offensive line tradition at Clemson. He is in the process of including articles and quotes from teammates like T.J. Watkins and Will Merritt, teammates with whom lifelong friendships have been cultivated. The scrapbook is one of many ways he has followed Clemson ever since he was a kid. The more he knew about Clemson, the more his love for the Tigers grew. And as his playing career for his program he adores dies down, Young sees the end of his childhood mission nearing.

"I guess my biggest goal is becoming a part of that tradition," he said. "This is what I want to be a part of and maybe one day some kid will be like, 'Kyle Young played here.'"

Mission accomplished.

Brian Outlaw

By Marsha Byers

Many times in life you do not know what you are missing until it is no longer a part of your life.

That was the case for Clemson center Brian Outlaw in the fall of 1997. After playing football from age 7-17, he spent the fall of 1997 watching the Tigers play from a seat in the student section. At the end of the year, the first-year freshman longed to return to the field.

"I thought I was burned out of football when I came to Clemson," said Outlaw. "I was concentrating on my studies (an engineering major) so I decided not to try out when I got here." But, that fall of sitting in the stands taught Outlaw that he was in fact anxious to get back on the field. The encouragement of his family also helped him with his decision to return to the gridiron. It has been a decision that has helped his entire family from a financial standpoint.

Outlaw's love for sports started early in his life. His grandfather, Alfred Giffillan, introduced him to baseball when he was five-years-old. "I think that my love for sports started at that first practice," said Outlaw. At the age of seven, he began to play football in the Gaffney Little League. He has played the center position since he was in the seventh grade.

While attending Gaffney High School and playing under Joe Montgomery his love for the game continued. He had an outstanding senior year of high school and was named to the all-area and all-region teams his senior year. He also played in the North-South All-Star games in Myrtle Beach, SC with his current Clemson teammate Will Merritt. Outlaw was also on the track and field team, throwing the shot put and discus; he wrestled for two years; and during his senior year he played on the golf team.

His high school guidance counselor encouraged him to come to Clemson and earn a college degree. "I did not have any idea of what I wanted to do with my life and Mr. Rhodes helped me make one of the most important decisions of my life," Outlaw said.

This all-around athletic ability combined with his smarts in the classroom has contributed to his success at Clemson at the center position. Of all the offensive line positions, center requires strength, but also quickness and athletic ability. It also requires a strong mind, as well, as the center has many offensive line calls to make at the snap of the ball.

Outlaw walked-on to the football team and his life again came into focus. He originally walked on as a long snapper, but when Head Coach Tommy Bowden came to Clemson in the spring of 1999, he was moved to offensive line and eventually to center.

Outlaw fit into Bowden's system. A look to the 1999 team reveals that the secret to Clemson's success centered around an offensive line that was relatively small, but quick. Outlaw fit the bill. "We were impressed with Brian's work ethic for one, but he also had the stamina to run with our uptempo offense," said Bowden. "He has been a valuable asset to our team. He plays behind a great player in Kyle Young, but when Kyle is out of the lineup, Brian does the job. You don't see many original walk-ons move up to second team on the offensive line and see action. But, Brian has."

Because of his hard work, Coach Bowden awarded Outlaw with a scholarship in the spring of 1999. "The scholarship has made my college career much easier. My family does not have the financial stress of paying for my education," said Outlaw.

And, his family has supplied great support for Outlaw. "My mother has been to every one of my football games since the fall of 1999 and my grandfather has made it to every home game and most of my away games." His sister, Kimberly, and her husband Rick Levesque have also been encouraging. "It is a great feeling knowing that the people who care for me most are at my games cheering for the Tigers and for me."

His decision to come to Clemson has been a good one. He has done a wonderful job of balancing his academic career and his football career. Outlaw is a biosystems engineering major. He has set very high goals for himself on and off the field. Outlaw wanted to be a Division I football player and a good student. He has succeeded in both and has become a master at time management and setting his priorities in the right order.

"I have learned what it takes to be successful in life and my family instilled in me those values that will help me make decisions that will make me successful," Outlaw said. His hard work and dedication is paying off, as he has made the honor roll for the past two spring semesters.

Outlaw's hard work is also evident in the weight room as well as on the football field. During the off-season he put on 15 pounds. With the added weight, he will be able to block the bigger defensive linemen he will face this season.

He had his best game of 2000 against Missouri in 2000, where he received an 82 percent grade from the coaches. His overall grade for the 2000 season was 69 percent, which was the highest for a reserve offensive lineman. He played in the first two games of 2001, nine snaps against Central Florida and 12 against Wofford. His coach's grades were outstanding, 89 percent against UCF and 92 percent against Wofford.

When he graduates in May, he will take away

Brian Outlaw watched games from a seat in the student section in the fall of 1997 before deciding he missed football. After walking on the team the next year, coach Tommy Bowden awarded him with a scholarship.

with him many memories of his time at Clemson. "The Clemson traditions of running down the Hill, homecoming games, spending Tiger Paw two-dollar bills at bowl games, and the amazing fans will always be special memories to me," Outlaw added.

He will also graduate with many great friends. "I have played with some of the best football players Clemson has ever had," Outlaw said. "I will miss being able to practice with Woody Dantzler, Kyle Young, Chad Carson, and many other wonderful guys on this football team."

The unity and support of the offensive line has helped him through tough times and Clemson and has taught him that friends are always there for each other.

Often times students look back on their college careers and wish they had more time to do things differently or even gone back and start their career over again. Brian Outlaw did not want to look back on his four years at Clemson and wish he could have played football.

Clemson vs. UNC Series

By Bryant Stone

Clemson's homecoming game versus North Carolina will mark the continuing tradition of one of the most evenly matched series in Tiger history. Clemson leads the all-time series against the Tar Heels 31-17-1 and has defeated UNC two consecutive years under Head Coach Tommy Bowden following three straight UNC victories by seven points or more. The Tigers also won six out of the 10 contests against the Tar Heels in the 1990s, and among those victories was their largest ever over UNC, a 40-7 victory at Death Valley in 1992. It was also the largest margin of victory in Clemson history against a ranked team.

Clemson currently holds a 15-6 home record all-time against North Carolina and a 14-10-1 record in games played in Chapel Hill. The Tigers are 13-9-1 in games at UNC's Kenan Stadium, and last year's Tiger victory there featured the biggest Clemson comeback since 1992.

After falling behind 17-0 in the first half, the adversity facing the Tigers seemed to take an overwhelming turn. Quarterback Woodrow Dantzler, the Tigers' Heisman Trophy candidate, left the game with 6:32 remaining before halftime when he injured his foot on a 24-yard quarterback scramble. Stepping into his place was redshirt freshman Willie Simmons, who revived the Tiger offense with a 29-yard touchdown pass to Jackie Robinson 50 seconds after his arrival.

Simmons recorded the highest single-game passing yardage of the season to that point, completing 10 of 18 passes for 228 yards and throwing four touchdowns, three to first-round NFL draft choice Rod Gardner. The Tigers outscored the Tar Heels 38-7 for the remainder of the game and also showcased one of their best defensive efforts of the season. Defensive captain Chad Carson and former All-American linebacker Keith Adams led the Tigers with 16 and 15 tackles, respectively, and Adams' first interception of his career with less than four minutes to play gave the Tigers the ball at North Carolina's two yard line. Running back Travis Zachery's scoring run two plays later sealed the victory for the Tigers, 38-24.

By erasing a 17-point deficit, the Tigers staged their largest come from behind victory since 1992, when they wiped out a 28-point deficit against the Virginia Cavaliers in Charlottesville, VA, to win 29-28. Clemson maintained its number-five ranking in the AP poll and its win over North Carolina was its eighth consecutive of the 2000 campaign en route to a 9-3 record and a second-place finish in the ACC.

A Clemson victory in 2001 would give the Tigers their longest winning streak against North Carolina since their seven-game win streak from 1986-1992.

North Carolina's longest winning streak against the Tigers took place from 1969-1972, when the Tar Heels won four straight games by at least 13 points. UNC's biggest victory against Clemson took place in 1996 they beat the Tigers 45-0 in the season opener for both schools.

The only tie in series history came on Nov. 5, 1977, in one of the most exciting games in series history. Charlie Pell's 7-1 Tigers came to Kenan

William Perry was a big reason Clemson was 4-0 against North Carolina between 1981 and 1984. The Tar Heels ranked in the top 20 in three of the four games.

Stadium to face the 6-2 Tar Heels in a critical late-season ACC contest. Clemson took the lead 13-10 with 11:13 to play in regulation, but kicker Obed Ariri missed the ensuing extra point, marking his first miss of the season. North Carolina's defense would stand tall after the Tiger score, giving their offense hope, and with 58 seconds left, Tom Biddle booted a 30-yard field goal to ensure the game's finish, with the teams deadlocked at 13-13. North Carolina went on to win the ACC Championship that season, with Clemson coming in a close second.

Two sets of plays in the early 1980s have managed to shape not only the history of this rivalry, but also the history of Tiger football. The nationally ranked 7-1 Tar Heels came to Death Valley in 1980 to face a hungry 5-3 Tiger squad. With only a few minutes to play, the Tigers found themselves down by five and driving down the field. With first and goal on the Tar Heel one-yard line, running back Wilbur Bullard (who had gained 43 of his 47 career rushing yards in the fourth quarter) was hit twice for no gain. On third and goal, quarterback Homer Jordan dropped back to pass but was sacked by Lawrence Taylor for a nine-yard loss. Jordan overthrew receiver Jerry Gaillard in the end zone on fourth down, and the Tar Heels took over on downs and ran out the clock for a 24-19 victory.

In 1981, the second-ranked and undefeated Tigers went to Chapel Hill looking for revenge against the eighth-ranked Tar Heels. The events of the final minutes of this game, as it would turn out, would completely redefine the history of Clemson football and helped lead to the Tigers' place among the perennial football powers of recent memory.

North Carolina took possession on its own two-yard line following a "coffin corner" punt by Dale Hatcher that went out of bounds. Tar Heel quarterback Scott Stankavage directed UNC to the 40-yard line following three first-down conversions. On first and 10, Stankavage threw a lateral pass incomplete to Alan Burrus. While Burrus pouted over the incompletion, Clemson All-American defensive tackle Jeff Bryant ran about 10 hustling yards and fell on the ball. Having been ruled a lateral, the Tigers took the ball with 57 seconds to play and won, 10-8. The next morning, the headline of the Greenville News read, "Tigers are 10-8cious."

Clemson continued with wins in 1982, 1983 and 1984. William Perry, Clemson's first three-time All-American played a big role in all of these wins. In 1984 he took over the game on North Carolina's final drive of the fourth period. He recorded tackles on three consecutive plays, including two behind the line of scrimmage.

Amazingly, only 43 total points separates these two rivals, who have the third longest standing rivalry in Tiger football history. After facing off for the first time in 1897, the Tar Heels and Tigers would meet only five times in the ensuing 18 years and did not compete against each other from 1915 to 1957. Today however will mark the 45th consecutive meeting between these schools, and needless to say, there have been some intense barnburners in the past. With the ACC Championship race shaping up to be one of the most wide open in recent memory, the Tigers should have their paws full this weekend.

President James F. Barker

Building A Future For Clemson

ties enhancements will include the opening of a new biotechnology complex, the renovation of Fike Recreation Center, and significant progress on the Tiger Pride athletics facilities campaign.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university's College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities was named president in October 1999.

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in St. Louis. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

He has received honorary doctorate degrees from South Carolina State University and Mars Hill College and has served on the Truman Scholars Selection Committee.

As a dean at Clemson, Barker co-founded the S.C. Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university's "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors' Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his new responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. He is part of a team of instructors who teach an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

"I think it's important that a president never lose touch with the classroom," he said.

The Barkers — Jim and Marcia — have two sons: Britt, a student at Daniel High School, and Jacob, who graduated from the University of North Carolina, attending on a baseball scholarship, and is now enrolled in Graduate School at Clemson.

Clemson University's 14th President, James F. Barker, brought to the job a clear vision of Clemson's future that since has evolved into a new set of goals designed to make Clemson one of the nations' top 20 public universities.

To achieve that ambitious goal, Barker is focusing on building the quality of teaching, research and service programs, as well increasing Clemson's involvement in international programs, recruiting stronger students, improving the library, winning athletic championships, and providing more resources in and out of the classroom.

"South Carolina students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state," he said. "Building Clemson's academic, research and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni."

Considerable progress is already being made toward achieving a top-20 ranking. In the past year, Clemson was named TIME Magazine's Public College of the Year, saw the largest one-year increase in research funding in history, and its highest SAT average among freshmen.

More progress is expected this year. A new academic support center will give students access to tutoring, counseling, workshops and other resources to help them improve their academic performance. A new Rutland Center for Ethics will help faculty, students and members of the community foster skills for making ethical judgments. Facili-

Jim Barker, above with wife Marcia, has set a goal to make Clemson one of the top 20 Public Universities in the nation.

Head Coach Tommy Bowden

It hasn't taken Tommy Bowden long to bring Clemson back to its customary place among the elite programs in the nation. A team with a 3-8 record in 1998, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today Poll of Oct. 22, 2000 after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Making a swift improvement is nothing new for Bowden. In 1997, he took over a 4-7 Tulane program and brought the Green Wave to a 7-4 mark in his first year. In 1998, the improvement continued with an 11-0 regular season and number-seven national ranking. In 1999, Bowden inherited a 3-8 Clemson team and elevated the Tigers to a bowl game and 6-6 final record. The 2000 Tigers concluded the season with a 9-3 record, its high win total since 1993.

As you can see, a pattern has formed in Tommy Bowden's head coaching career. In each of his first four years he has coached his team to exactly a three-win improvement over the previous year, believed to be a first in Division I college football history. If he brings Clemson to another three-win improvement in 2001 it really would be newsworthy, because the Tigers would have a 12-0 record, and a National Championship. Bowden already is just the third coach in Clemson history to bring the Tigers to a three-win improvement in consecutive years and is one of just two Division I coaches (John Robinson at UNLV) to do it over the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

In his first two years at Clemson, Bowden has a 15-9 record with the Tigers, and two bowl appearances. In 2001, he will attempt to do something that predecessors Jess Neely, Frank Howard, Charley Pell, Danny Ford and Ken Hatfield all failed to do: take the Tigers to a bowl game each of his first three years with the program.

The Tigers set 57 school records in 2000 and have set 98 marks in the 24 games Bowden has served as head coach, over four per game. The 2000 season produced a Heisman Trophy contender in quarterback Woodrow Dantzler, who personally set 16 of the 45 individual bests recorded by Clemson athletes last season. The 12 team records set in 2000 included total offense per game in a season (437), touchdowns in a season (55) and most points in a season (416).

Clemson was one of the most balanced teams in the nation in 2000. Clemson ranked in the top 15 in the nation in scoring offense, total offense and rushing offense. It had a top 25 ranking in passing efficiency offense. Clemson was one of six teams nationally to average more than 200 yards rushing and 200 yards passing in 2000. He is the only Division I coach to average at least 190 of each category and at least 430 yards of total offense over the last four years.

For the first time ever, Clemson had two 1000-yard rushers and a 1000-yard receiver on the same team. Defensively, Chad Carson and Keith Adams both ranked in the top 10 in the nation in tackles per game and four Tigers were named first-team All-ACC, the high figure since 1991.

His second Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Clemson players were finalists or semifinalist for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three candidates for the Butkus Award. Center Kyle Young was one of the top three candidates for the Dave Rimington Award. Four players were named All-Americans and eight players were first or second-team all-conference selections.

Young and Chad Carson were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year the football team had its highest team GPA on record and a record number of ACC Academic honor roll recipients. Seven starters on the 2001 team already have degrees from Clemson.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal — Improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach of the Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation's third toughest regular season schedule according to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one season jump in ACC history in league play.

The Tigers also made a four-game ACC win improvement in 1999. It was just the fifth time in ACC history that a team made that big of a league victory jump. Bowden had taken over a team with a losing record and brought it to a bowl game in his first season, just the sixth coach in ACC history to accomplish that feat.

The Clemson program set or tied 41 school records in Bowden's first year, including 26 on offense. Ironically, Bowden's first Tulane team set or tied 26 offensive school records.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an innovative offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson's 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history.

In 1998, Clemson ranked 103rd in the nation in turnover margin, but in 1999 the Tigers were 11th, an incredible 92-place improvement in the rankings. Clemson has a 209-80 advantage in points off turnovers in his first two years at Clemson.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top four tacklers in the league.

The Bowden Family: Tommy, Linda, Lauren and Ryan.

Adams, a sophomore that season, finished the season with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Thanks to the wide open offensive attack several Clemson players made their presence felt in the national rankings and the Clemson record book. Sophomore running back Travis Zachery had 16 touchdowns to rank ninth in the country in scoring.

Junior wide receiver Rod Gardner became the school's first 1000-yard receiver. Gardner had 80 receptions for 1084 yards, Clemson single season records in both areas. He was 17th in the nation in receptions per game with a 6.6 mark. His yards per game average of 91.7 was 23rd best in the nation.

For the first time in Clemson history two Tiger quarterbacks threw for over 1000 yards in a season. Woodrow Dantzler passed for 1506 yards, while Brandon Streeter passed for 1466 yards during the regular season. The two diametrically opposite quarterbacks had total offense games over 350 yards, a testimony to Bowden's offensive system.

Clemson played the third toughest schedule in the nation in 1999. Four of Clemson's losses came against teams ranked in the top 15 of the final AP poll. Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby's top ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest points they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn't take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But, he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane's accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but their offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the only school in the nation that averaged over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. The team ranked fourth in the nation in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 points per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays.

The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach of the Year.

Bowden's team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979 and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated BYU in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC's college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his seventh year as wide receivers coach at Florida State, his first as offensive coordinator.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-74-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a GA. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life's work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record and a Gator Bowl championship.

In 1983, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to an NFL career.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Alabama Offensive Coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator position, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That season he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with the SEC Tigers for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top 25 seasons, including a number-four final ranking in 1993 and a number-nine final rating in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined. Bowden worked under his brother Terry Bowden for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown High in West Virginia. The couple has two children, Ryan (19), a sophomore at Clemson, and Lauren (16) a junior at Daniel High in Clemson.

Break From Tradition.

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness and color haven't gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn't going to be cheap. With Eastman's Chromspun® and Estron® yarns — you can have your cake and eat it too.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. It complements our popular Estron line of white yarns. Plus, we make all Eastman® yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That's a tradition we're proud of.

Death Valley

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999.

In the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s, various publications named top 10 stadiums in college football and Clemson Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as "Death Valley," has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 208 games in the previous 59 years there (208-81-7) and has won over 70 percent of the contests. Thirty-three times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 60th year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten half-way through.

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the

Clemson has had 33 crowds of more than 80,000 in Death Valley, including a record of 86,092 for Bowden field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled—the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Clemson Traditions

First Friday Parade

The Clemson football season kicks off each year with the annual First Friday Parade. The once-a-year event takes place on the Friday afternoon prior to the first home game (Aug. 31 this year). Floats from various fraternities and sororities and other campus organizations are represented in the parade that rolls down highway 93 in front of the President's Home in Clemson. The parade culminated at the Amphitheater in the heart of campus where the first Pep Rally of the year takes place.

The Grant Marshal of parade is featured at the pep rally. Last year, President Jim Barker was the Grand Marshal. At the conclusion of the parade route he disappeared for a few moments, only to reappear on the stage of the amphitheater in the Tiger mascot's suit. Other Grand Marshals have been Clemson legend Frank Howard, former PGA Tour pro Dillard Pruitt, Hall of Fame coach Jess Neely and noted television announcers Brent Musburger and Ara Parseghian.

Homecoming

Tigerama is the World's largest pep rally and it takes place on the Friday evening prior to Homecoming. This combination pep rally, beauty pageant, fireworks display and skit presentation attracts over 30,000 people. It was the brainchild of former Clemson legend Gator Farr, who was the master of pep rallies in the 1940s and 1950s. This year Tigerama will be held at Death Valley on Oct. 19 at 7:00 PM.

Clemson will face North Carolina on Homecoming on Oct. 20 this year. The Tigers are 26-2-2 since 1971 on Homecoming with the only losses coming to Georgia Tech in 1989 and to Virginia in 1997. The first homecoming game played at Clemson took place on Sept. 30, 1922 when Centre defeated Clemson at Riggs Field, 21-0.

Clemson has celebrated Homecoming every year since 1922 with the exception of the 1930 and 1938 seasons. Clemson has a 56-18-3 record on Homecoming games over the years, a .755 winning percentage and has outscored the opposition 1644-1010 in those previous 77 games. The average margin of victory is 21 to 13.

Howard's Rock

When the Clemson team gathers to Run Down the Hill (see Running Down the Hill) the players rub Howard's Rock because of the mystical powers it is supposed to give Clemson players. The rock is mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill and was given to Coach Frank Howard by a friend (S.C. Jones' 19) who picked it up in Death Valley, CA. The Rock was first placed on the pedestal at the top of the hill on Sept. 24, 1966, a game Clemson won 40-35 over Virginia. The team started rubbing the rock for the first game of 1967, a 23-6 win over Wake Forest on Sept. 23, 1967. The pedestal was refurbished prior to the 2000 season.

Running Down the Hill

Running Down the Hill is one of the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint. After Clemson's last warmup, the team retreats to the home dressing room located under the West Stands. At about 12:50 (for normal 1:00 P.M. game), the team boards two buses and drives around the periphery of the stadium to the east side of the field.

After everyone is properly collected, the cannon sounds, Tiger Rag is played and Clemson charges down the hill (exactly 100 feet top to bottom) and onto the field. It is one of the most celebrated entrances in sport. The Tigers have done it for every game since 1942, except for 1970, 1971 and four games of the 1972 season.

In all, the Tigers have run down the hill 280 times heading into 2001. How in the world did the tradition of running down the hill start? There is no long involved explanation. It used to be the quickest way to get to the field. When the stadium was built in 1942 the football lockerrooms were up the street in Fike Fieldhouse.

When the players were finished getting dressed they used to walk out the front door and walk down the street to "The Hill". Coach Howard continued the tradition when lockerrooms were finally built inside the stadium because Clemson fans used to get so fired up when they gathered at the top of the hill. That's when the buses came into use to spend the trip from the lockerroom to the other side of the stadium. Clemson now has a record of 202-72-7, a .731 percentage winning mark, when they run down the hill. Clemson is 6-9 (40 percent) when it doesn't use the hill as its entrance.

The Tiger Paw

John Antonio holds a special place in the hearts of Tiger fans and in the pocketbooks of sports marketing entrepreneurs. Antonio invented the Tiger paw, the distinctive logo of the Clemson athletic teams that has become synonymous with this University's athletic success.

Antonio was an innovative account executive with Henderson Advertising in Greenville, and prior to the 1970 season, unveiled the Paw as Clemson's new logo. It has shown up all over the country on items owned by Clemson fans. Many institutions with a feline as mascot have used the logo, or an impression of it.

Antonio also came up with the phrase, "Fly the friendly skies of United," when he worked for the Leo Burnette Agency in Chicago. "I've never had a logo or an emblem copied as much as the Tiger Paw," said Antonio, now 70 and living in Greenville.

Antonio still remembers the day he made the presentation of the Tiger Paw to Frank Howard, then the Clemson Athletic Director. "He wasn't saying much at all," recalled Antonio in an article in the Greenville News by Alyce Atkinson on Feb. 16, 1997. "I kind of thought I was losing this fight."

At this point Antonio pulled out an orange football helmet with a tiger paw painted on the side.

"Coach Howard's eyes got as big as saucers and he smiled. From there it was downhill. Coach Howard wanted that helmet." Those Tiger paws are still on the Clemson helmets today.

TIGER MASCOT

Since 1954, a Clemson student has adorned the mascot suit to entertain the Clemson faithful. Joined in 1993 by the Tiger Cub, these furry creatures can be seen imitating game officials (now against the rules) signing autographs, getting their pictures taken with dignitaries like Presidents Reagan and Bush, shooting the cannon, or doing pushups each time Clemson scores. We keep pushup records. Last year, thanks to Tommy Bowden's record-breaking offense, Jon Potter broke the single season pushup record by over 300 pushups.

Running Down the Hill

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Clemson Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season. Less than a year before Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was at war.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a walk down Williamson Road from Fike Field House's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the hill behind the east end zone. There were no dressing facilities in the west end zone—only a big clock where the hands turned, and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no tiger paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the Clemson class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA, and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA, to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike for a year or more. One day Howard was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was the executive secretary of IPTAY, to, "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office."

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. After all, it had been brought 3000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-sixties, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shutouts in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948 McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

Running Down the Hill

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it 'Death Valley' in the 1950's, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the 'valley' in 1991.

But getting back to Howard's rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the hill that day, Howard told his players: "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it." Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west end zone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the hill, their record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above—280 times heading into the 2001 season.

After Clemson's final warm-up, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west end zone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east end zone and debarks to the top of the hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying tiger paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up 'Tiger Rag'...The frenzy starts in all sincerity...and usually lasts two and a half to three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

Mother of the Year

By Jacob Barker

Each day Clemson students walk into Redfern Health Center and are greeted by a warm, smiling face, the face of Susan Fagan, who works as an administrative assistant at the center. Without even realizing the importance of her actions, Fagan continuously opens her arms to all students she comes in contact with and cares for them as though they were her own children.

For more than 40 years of dedication and service to Clemson, Fagan is being recognized today as Tiger Brotherhood's Mother of the Year. What makes her so deserving of this distinguished award is not simply her service to Clemson, her community and her family, but it is also the humble manner in which she engages in these acts of kindness.

Fagan grew up in Lavonia, GA and it was in high school that she met her future husband Charles. After dating for almost three years, the couple was married in 1958. The two moved to Clemson in 1960 and have been devoted Tiger fans ever since.

The Fagans have two daughters, Melanie and Debra, both of whom are now grown and have Clemson families of their own. Melanie teaches at Ravenel Elementary School in Seneca and is married to Rusty Guill, a Clemson graduate who works in the Student Affairs office at the university. The Guills have two children, Kayln who is nine years old and Carson who is seven. Debra is married to Wayne Martin, who is also a graduate of Clemson. The Martins now live in Powdersville and have two children, Brandon age 10 and Ashleigh who is six years old.

Over the years, in addition to being a mom to her own two children and a grandmother to her four grandchildren, Fagan has taken on the role of a mom to all Clemson students. She has been an employee of Clemson since 1969 and for the last seven years she has worked in the pharmacy and at the front desk of the Redfern Health Center on campus. Besides always having candy for the students and her fellow employees to enjoy, she often brings fresh flowers from her yard to brighten up the lobby area.

"Susan Fagan is simply one of the nicest people I have ever met," said Dr. Rose Marie McDonald, a fellow employee of Fagan's at Redfern. "She is so warm and caring towards the students and their time spent at Redfern is greatly enhanced because of her. When we conduct student evaluations, she is always mentioned by the students as being the highlight of their Redfern experience. What is also so amazing about her is that she treats everyone that works with her with that same kindness. She is always bringing candy and flowers for everyone in the office and she knows exactly what to say when one of us is having a hard day."

In addition to her many years of service at Clemson, Fagan is involved with numerous organizations in the community. She has been an active member of the Fort Hill Garden Club, the Pickens County Council on Aging, Manna and Helping Hands. She has also served on the Board of Directors for the Meals on Wheels program for more than 20 years. She is a Deacon at the Baptist Church in Clemson and serves on the student committee at the church.

As active as Fagan has been in the community over the years, it is her dedication and love for the students of Clemson University that makes her especially deserving of the Mother-of-the-Year award. Through the adoption program at the Baptist Church, Fagan has been a second mother to literally hundreds of Clemson students during the past 40 years.

A standing invitation for Sunday lunch at her house is extended 52 a weeks a year for her adopted students. She serves all the meals on china plates and with silver place settings in order to make the students feel more at home. It is not unusual for there to be five to 10 college students every Sunday at the Fagan's house because their friends are always welcome just as they would be at the students' real homes.

Other than meals on Sundays, students are always dropping by the Fagan's house to have supper, wash their clothes, borrow a car or pickup truck, or simply just to talk. And for the students who are from especially far away, she cares for their pets and plants over fall and spring breaks and other university holidays.

Students often spend the night at the Fagan's home if they need a quiet place to stay, and during exam week she always has goody bags waiting for them when they come over. Many of the students' parents even stay at the Fagan's house when they come to Clemson to visit their children.

"As a child growing up in the Baptist church, I always felt a sense of love and protection whenever I was around Mrs. Fagan," remembered current Clemson graduate student Bobby Rettew. "She was always there for me when I needed I hug and as I got older, I began to fully appreciate the way she affects so many peoples lives. She is a great listener and she always makes everyone around her feel amazingly special. She has a unique connection with Clemson students and if any student ever needed a hot meal or a place to stay, Mrs. Fagan was always there waiting with open arms."

"Throughout my four years at Clemson, I was amazed by the warmth and consideration that Mrs. Fagan provides each student with whom she comes into contact," said former Clemson Student Body President Rita Bolt. "It is impossible to describe the impact her kindness has had on the Clemson family and her own family, and she is truly deserving of the Mother-of-the-Year Award."

It is very difficult to put into words the humility and kindness of Fagan and the tremendous impact she has had on her community and the students of Clemson. She never seeks or wants credit for all that she does for the people around her, but today we recognize Susan Fagan's love and dedication for Clemson and her 40 years of service to its students.

Jacob Barker is from Clemson, SC and is a graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office. He is a member of Tiger Brotherhood.

WHAT IS TIGER BROTHERHOOD?

Tiger Brotherhood is an honorary service fraternity at Clemson. It still embraces the same basic tenets as established by it founders, led by John Logan Marshall in 1929. Tiger Brotherhood promotes high standards of social and ethical conduct, while recognizing in its members an earnest devotion to Clemson, coupled with the integrity of character commensurate with a typical Clemson gentleman.

The organization embodies an unequalled cross-section representation of the Clemson community. Students, faculty and staff all work with the bonds of brotherhood to champion a closer relationship. One for all and all for one, with Clemson and its many traditions and undying spirit as the central focus, today provides viable, flexible and a continuing forum for ideas and unending service to Clemson.

James Trapp

By Louis Garmendia

The 2000 NFL season was a super one for James Trapp. The former defensive back for Clemson from 1989-92 finished tied for fourth on his team with a career-high 15 special teams' tackles and was the special teams captain while serving as a valuable backup in the secondary. And the team, the Baltimore Ravens, won the Super Bowl. For Trapp, it meant finally realizing the dream of every football player and finally duplicating the feat accomplished by some of his Tiger teammates.

"I was ecstatic," said Trapp. "It had been nine years in the league for me and coming out of Clemson there were a couple of young guys that got them early. To see the guys wet behind the ears getting rings I was like 'Hey, man!' But I was just really happy."

There weren't any obvious signs in training camp that the Ravens would win the Super Bowl and nary a football expert predicted a championship for a franchise that had yet to even make the playoffs. It was Trapp's ninth year in the league and his second with the Ravens after spending the beginning of his career with the Raiders.

"It was my second year on the team and you could see the guys start to gel together," he said. "Everybody wants to go to the Super Bowl in training camp, but I thought we had a good chance to make the playoffs. I knew we had a pretty good shot because of the way we gelled together, and the coaching staff."

The Ravens started out the season 5-1 with all five wins coming against divisional opponents and appeared to be headed towards the playoffs.

"We knew we had a good chance just because of the way we were playing ball," he said. "It wasn't like we were barely getting by. We knew what mistakes we were making and how to fix them. The coaching staff really did an excellent job with using the right formations, personnel and packages."

But then the team hit a terrible slide in which the offense did not score a touchdown in five straight games. The team only lost three of those games and it looked as if its once sure playoff bid was now in serious jeopardy. The Ravens refused to panic, however.

"The thing that I was really impressed with was that the team stuck together," said Trapp. "It wasn't like the offensive guys were getting ragged by us. We were all together; we were all in the same boat. We just did our part because once the offense came around, they really did their part. It all worked out really well and the guys stuck together. It started out in training camp and the team unity was outstanding."

The offense finally did come around starting with a 27-7 win against Cincinnati, the beginning of an amazing run. Baltimore scored 44 points in one game and 34 in another as it won its last seven regular season games and earned its first playoff bid. The playoff-clinching win against San Diego was Trapp's best game of the year and he won special teams player of the game. He had three tackles on kickoff coverage and forced a fumble when he knocked a blocker into the punter.

James Trapp, who played football at Clemson 1989-92, was a member of the Baltimore Ravens that defeated the New York Giants 34-7 to win the Super Bowl last season.

The postseason was uncharted territory for most of the players and it presented a daunting challenge. As a wildcard entry, the Ravens would have to win two games on the road to reach the Super Bowl.

"It didn't scare us at all because we just knew what we had," said Trapp. "You get a feeling like you know what you've got and you don't worry about whatever shows up. It was one of those feelings we had and we just went with it. We played hard, we stuck together and the game was never over with us until the horn blew."

After defeating Denver 21-3, Baltimore traveled to Tennessee where the Titans had lost only one game in franchise history. That loss occurred less than two months earlier when the Ravens prevailed 24-23. Baltimore remembered the Titan victory and repeated it with a 24-10 win to advance to the AFC Championship game. After defeating Oakland 16-

3, it was off to Tampa, FL, and the Super Bowl.

The Super Bowl is more than just a game and for players, the pageantry, calls from old friends and carnival-like atmosphere can be a big headache. But Trapp has nothing but fond memories of the time leading up to the biggest game of his life.

"Coach (Brian) Billick really prepared us well for certain things," he said. "It wasn't a hassle at all and I had a great Super Bowl experience. That's why I'm looking forward to coming back."

Of course, the experience was made sweeter by the game itself. Trapp recorded an early tackle on defense and two more on special teams as the Ravens rolled to a 34-7 victory over the New York Giants.

"When we took the field it seemed like the first quarter took forever," he said. "But once we settled in under our pads it was the same old game. We just really had fun on the field."

It was vindication for a team that could never win over the critics. With one of the most dominating defenses off all-time, the Ravens proved they had just enough offense to become world champions. It wasn't the first world championship for Trapp, who won the 200 meter indoor track championship while at Clemson and, in 1995, was the NFL's Fastest Man. He said that while the glory of individual achievement is one-of-a kind, the Super Bowl was a sweeter victory.

"Track is an individual title, so there's no one to share it with," he said. "But to celebrate with a team, a group of guys that was with you the whole hard road, was really something."

Baltimore is back to its winning ways again this season and Trapp plans on a return trip to the Super Bowl. During training camp the Ravens were followed around by an NFL Films crew and a mini-series was broadcast on HBO. Trapp says it was another shrewd move by coach Billick to keep the team on its toes.

"The cameras weren't too intrusive," he said. "It was a good experience."

With all his work during training camp and during the year, Trapp still finds time to follow his alma mater. He plans to come back to Clemson this summer and finish his degree. He watches the football team every chance he gets and was thrilled by the 47-44 win over Georgia Tech earlier this season.

"I've got a lot to say about those Tigers. Me and Terry Allen are up here in the locker room and we need them to win every game," said Trapp. "Put that in their ears. We've got a lot of Maryland cats around here so we need to put a stop to them."

Clemson Bowl History

Clemson celebrated a national championship after defeating Nebraska in the 1982 Orange Bowl.

Sterling Smith's tackle for a safety gave Clemson a 15-14 win over Miami in the 1951 Orange Bowl.

Tracy Johnson scored three touchdowns in Clemson's 35-10 win over Penn State in the 1988 Citrus Bowl.

Strength Training

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last two years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as Tiger strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer for that particular athlete throughout his career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

Vickery Hall

Vickery Hall

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

C.A.T.S. Coaching Athletes To Success

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletics Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first support facility in the country built solely for the all-around education of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete's needs.

ACADEMIC COMMITMENT

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

Clemson's student-athletes had a 2.80 GPA for the spring semester in 2001, the highest overall GPA on record. The overall student body had a 2.82, and the 0.02 margin between the student-athletes and the overall student population was the smallest differential on record. A record 28 student-athletes were named to the President's List (a perfect 4.0) and a record 97 student-athletes made the dean's list for the spring semester of 2001. Overall, 215 student-athletes had a 3.0 GPA or better, nearly 50 percent of the 441 student-athletes in the 19 varsity programs at Clemson.

A total of seven teams posted GPAs over 3.0 in the spring semester of 2001, the most in school history for a single semester. Six programs posted all-time highs for semester GPA, including the football, men's soccer, women's soccer, men's swimming, women's swimming and rowing teams.

The Clemson football team had a 2.58 team GPA in the spring, significantly ahead of the previous high of 2.49 set in the spring semester of 2000. Tommy Bowden has been the head coach at Clemson for five semesters and his team has had five of the top six semesters on record. Thirty-seven Clemson football players made the academic honor roll, the high total among Clemson teams for the semester.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and priority scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery

Hall is the tutorial program.

Of the 160 programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted a Level 1 certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of six schools from across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

The Dick Hendley Computer Lab is one of the areas of Vickery Hall that make it one of the top facilities of its kind, nationally.

Vickery Hall

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on Saturday and Sunday. During exam periods the lab hours are extended.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the staff at Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

SERVICE COMMITMENT

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on inter-active programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top 6 by the ACC.

LIFELine, another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LIFELine has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he/she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with the media.

ATHLETIC COMMITMENT

Under the direction of athletic director Bobby Robinson, Clemson is undoubtedly one of the elite programs of Division I athletics.

With a generous funding base from Clemson's booster organization, IPTAY, and the forward-thinking of our athletic administration, the Clemson Tigers will continue to be a dominating athletic force, not only in the ACC, but nationally as well.

Clemson was commended for its graduation rate in football by the American Football Coaches Association in 1999 and 2000. Three members of the 2000 team who celebrated graduation in May of 2001 were Terry Bryant, Rod Gardner and Jason Holloman.

CLEMSON COMEBACKS

Last year Clemson overcame a 17-point deficit to defeat North Carolina in Chapel Hill. The victory allowed Clemson to run its record to 8-0. Clemson has overcome a 10-point or larger deficit to gain a victory or tie 18 times in its history. It is interesting to note that five of the top six have taken place on the road. The Clemson record for points overcome for victory is 28, set at Virginia in 1992. It is also the ACC record involving two conference schools. Maryland holds the record for a non-conference game with a 31-point comeback victory at Miami (FL) in 1984.

Sports Year In Review

The men's basketball team defeated #1 ranked North Carolina in February, ending the nation's longest win streak at 18 games. It marked the second time in school history that Clemson had upset the nation's top-ranked team.

- The Clemson sports program had 11 teams rank in the final top 25, the university's highest number of top 25 teams since the 1991-92 academic year when a record 13 teams finished in the top 25. Overall, it tied for the third highest number of top 25 finishes in Clemson history.

- Clemson had 31 All-Americans in 2000-01, its second highest single year total on record. The 39 achieved in 1998-99 is the only figure that is higher for one year.

- The program could boast of 70 All-ACC selections, the highest total since 1989-90 when a record 82 athletes made All-ACC. The total reached in 2000-01 is the second highest total in school history.

- Clemson upset the nation's top ranked team in two different sports during the 2000-01 academic year. The Lady Tiger soccer team defeated a #1 ranked and eventual national champion North Carolina team by a 2-1 score in October at Clemson. The Clemson men's basketball team upset a #1 ranked North Carolina team that had won 18 straight games in February. It was just the third academic year in Clemson history that the school had wins over top ranked teams in two different sports.

- Clemson had another strong performance in spring sports as four teams ranked in the top 25 in the nation in their respective final polls. The golf team finished second to tie for its highest finish ever, while the women's track team was seventh, its highest outdoor track ranking. The baseball team advanced to the Super Regionals and ranked 13th in the final poll. The rowing team, in just its third year of existence, ranked 21st in the final poll.

- Clemson had at least two All-ACC performers on 14 of its 19 teams, while nine different teams had at least two All-Americans.

- Twelve of Clemson's 19 teams participated in post-season play and six different teams that compete in dual match or game competition upset at least one top 25 team.

- Clemson was one of the dominant programs in the nation when it came to soccer. Both programs ranked in the top 10 in the nation, one of just three programs nationally to make that claim. The men advanced to the Sweet 16, while the women advanced to the Elite Eight. Both teams played host to the NCAA Tournament.

- Clemson had the ACC Performer of the Year in three of the four league track meets during 2000-01. Cyndonie Mothersill was the ACC Track Performer of the year at the ACC outdoor meet, while Jamine Moton was the MVP of the indoor meet. Jacey Harper was the MVP of the Indoor track meet on the men's side.

- Three coaches in three different sports were named ACC Coach of the Year in 2000-01. The list included Susie Lueck (rowing), Bob Pollock (Indoor track) and Ray Leone (women's soccer).

IPTAY ENDOWMENT PROGRAM

IPTAY is widely regarded nationally as the father of Athletic Fundraising. It all started in 1934 and from a private meeting of a small group of Clemson supporters has sprung into an organization that raised a record $10 million last year. The organization plays a major role in ensuring that all 19 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships offered by the NCAA.

The organization also has helped finance facilities that contribute to the well-being of student-athletes on and off the field. Vickery Hall is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. It is a major reason Clemson student-athletes have had their highest cumulative GPA on record for five consecutive semesters.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson, currently helping more than 40 students at Clemson.

IPTAY Executive Director George Bennett has continued to keep Clemson among the best in the nation in terms of fund-raising by the establishment of the IPTAY Endowment Program. In April of 1994, he kicked off the beginning of the endowment of positions program at the 85th birthday celebration for former Clemson Coach Frank Howard. The endowments are secure with a $100,000 donation paid over a five-year period.

"This is a chance to broaden the horizons of IPTAY," said Bennett. "It gives an individual or a group of people an opportunity to endow a position that meant something during their college days, or to honor a person at a position. The money being endowed is going to secure our future as the interest is used to carry on our program forever."

The first endowment was for the head football coach position to honor the legendary Frank Howard. Howard coached football at Clemson 39 years, 30 as the head coach. During his tenure the Tigers won 165 games,

100 of which were against conference foes. "Former players and friends of Coach Howard made donations over the cost of attending the celebration program and that was enough for the endowment. Their gifts were a way of permanently thanking Coach Howard for all that he did for Clemson."

"Following Coach Howard's birthday party we began to look for an individual to help us support and promote the program and Bill Hudson's name came up. He was an outstanding player at Clemson who has been equally successful in the business world. We went to him and explained the program and its goals and that we were looking for his leadership to help get the program going, and he accepted."

Hudson, a 1956 graduate, was a three-year letter winner at tackle who played professionally for the Montreal Alouettes, the San Diego Chargers, and the Boston Patriots. He earned Pro Bowl honors in 1962. Mr. Hudson sees this program growing into a large part of Clemson's athletic funding. "When other people see information on the endowment program and learn what it is about this program will grow. Success builds on success. People who are looking to honor a friend or family member now have a great means to do that."

Besides the Hudson's family endowment four other football endowments were made and one managers position in the first year. Now there are more than 90 positions endowed. The goal of the program is to get every position endowed. "From the free safety to the number-three player in women's tennis, we hope to have every position endowed," said Bennett.

"We will likely use the Avenue of Champions as a physical place to honor these people further for the positions they have endowed. That will have plenty of space, so we will be working to have as many endowments across all of our sports."

"The personal satisfaction that they helped Clemson University, specifically the Athletic department, and that they are securing its future are the main reasons for becoming involved."

And with more involvement Clemson will have a very secure future for generations to come.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcasts each Clemson football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three shows, "Countdown to Kickoff," "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Football Final."

A Clemson tradition since the mid-seventies, Countdown to Kickoff is a 90-minute entertainment and interactive program produced live from the lawn at Littlejohn Coliseum at the corner closest to Death Valley. The show begins two hours prior to kickoff. Popular Greenville entertainers Love & Hudson, play host to the show that is attended by thousands of Clemson fans. Interviews, games, display items and pre-game excitement are all part of the show that has become a part of the game-day excitement at Death Valley.

The Game Day Broadcast features long-time voice of the Tigers Jim Phillips. A legendary figure in Clemson sports, Phillips is in his 34th year providing play-by-play for Clemson sports. A high percentage of Clemson fans have never heard anyone else broadcast a Clemson football game. He is one of the most respected broadcasters in the country.

Joining Phillips on the broadcast are former Clemson Hall of Fame quarterbacks Mike Eppley and Rodney Williams. Eppley was an All-ACC quarterback for the Tigers between 1980-84, while Williams led the Tigers to a record 32 victories, including bowl wins over Stanford, Penn State and Oklahoma, as a starting signal caller between 1985-88.

The Game Day broadcast begins 30 minutes prior to each game. Coach Tommy Bowden's pre-game thoughts are heard during the opening segment as well as scene setters from around the ACC and the nation. Eppley, Williams and Phillips, who have followed Clemson football for a combined 70 years also provide their pre-game analysis.

After the game, noted upstate television sports personality Pete Yanity will play host to the Football Final. Fans can hear coach Bowden as well as selected players comment on that day's game. Reports also will be presented from important games from around the ACC and the nation.

In addition to the Saturday broadcasts, fans can also follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls, a one hour program with Coach Bowden and Jim Phillips each Thursday evening. The show runs from August 30 to November 19.

DESTINATION TOP 20

A Road Map for Academic Excellence

CLEMSON

STUDENT POWER

Clemson is as strong as its student body.

On the road to becoming a top-20 public university, Clemson is working hard to attract more top scholars, provide academic support that will improve scholarship retention and graduation rates, and provide a safe, enjoyable and healthful environment.

We're off to a good start.

To strengthen student achievement both in and out of class, Clemson has these new projects and programs.

- Clemson National Scholars, a feature of a bigger, better scholarship program making the University competitive for top students in the nation.
- Academic Support Center, modeled after the successful student-athlete enrichment program at Clemson's Vickery Hall.
- Class of 1941 Studio for Student Communication, an expansion of the award-winning Pearce Center for Professional Communication.
- Fike Recreation Center renovation, a project that will give students one of the finest recreation facilities on a college campus.
- Two new dormitories that will allow demolition of outdated housing.
- Calhoun Honors College's new home in Tillman Hall.
- Expanded services and programming at the state-of-the-art Hendrix Student Center.

South Carolina deserves to have a top-20 public university within its borders, and Clemson students deserve to have the strongest all-round educational experience that such a university can provide.

1981 Revisited

By Cricket Stewart

It had started as a season of great promise, but as it progressed to the final two games of the regular season, 1981 shaped up to be a season to remember. The ACC Championship was on the line with the Maryland game and a perfect season was in sight with a victory over South Carolina.

Three-year starter (he played behind Ring of Honor selection Jerry Butler his freshman year) split end Jerry Gaillard remembered during preseason workouts a reporter asking him what he wanted to accomplish in 1981.

"My freshman year, we went 11-1 and beat Ohio State in the Gator Bowl", he told the sportswriter, "I'd love to have a better record than we did as a freshman. The significance of going 12-0 versus 11-1 came through.

"When I made that statement, I didn't really think we could do it because we had been 6-5 the year before."

Clemson's first ACC Rookie of the Year (1979) Chuck McSwain said that's exactly what made it so special—the turnaround from the previous season.

"People still talk about that (1981) season. We had a big turnaround, but mostly we had great leadership—that's the main thing—a good mixture of young players and great leadership."

"The time was great," said future Pro Bowl linebacker selection Johnny Rembert. "We had so much fun. We wanted to practice and be together. It was a rare camaraderie. The biggest thrill for me that year was watching Homer Jordan operate at quarterback. He was incredible and gained so much confidence during the season."

Perry Tuttle said Jordan was a "peanut-butter-sandwich-eating-country boy" who made magic. Jordan was known as a man of little words, but a lot of action. "I don't know if we truly knew it at the time, but that was our goal—to win the national championship—that's what was instilled in us—to shoot for playing in the Orange Bowl," Jordan recalls. "Coach (George) Dostal had pictures of oranges in the weight room in the preseason."

The Maryland game on November 14 was one of Jordan's finest moments. Clemson had just the lone victory (1978) in the previous nine tries against the Terps. Going into the 1981 Maryland game, the Tigers were 9-0 with the ACC Championship at stake.

Jordan was brilliant completing 20-29 passes for 270 yards with three touchdowns. Tuttle caught 10 of those passes for 151 yards and two touchdowns, while fellow senior Jerry Gaillard finished his career at home with his first touchdown catch. "It was exciting for me to score a touchdown, but I got as much enjoyment catching short passes and blocking as I did catching that touchdown."

Jordan, always understated, was proud of his senior teammate and remembers telling him, "Smokey (Gaillard's nickname on the team for being so fast and leaving everyone in his 'smoke') I'm throwing it. Don't drop it, 'cause this is the only one you get!", Jordan laughed remembering the pass. "It was his chance and his moment."

All the Tiger points came in the first half and Maryland's only score came in the fourth quarter when Clemson fumbled on its own seven-yard-line and the Terps recovered. Sophomore Bob Paulling, also a starter on Clemson's nationally ranked baseball team that year and now a member of the Hall of Fame, kicked three extra points, giving him 36 in a row, a Clemson record at the time. The Tigers went on to win the ACC Championship with a 21-7 victory. Maryland was led that year by quarterback Boomer Esiason who went just 15-38 passing against Clemson's outstanding defense.

The South Carolina game that year had all the markings that a great rivalry has—blocked punts for touchdowns, back and forth scoring and serious bragging rights. "We had a lot riding on that game," remembered Chuck McSwain. "At the time, we were 10-0, but we felt we still had something to prove.

"We used to listen to that old guy—Leonard's Losers. He picked us to lose the game! I remember Coach Ford made a point to tell us, 'You've still got people who don't believe in you.'

"South Carolina drove and scored first. Then my brother, Rod, blocked the punt."

Johnny Rembert seized the opportunity, falling on it in the end zone for the Tigers' first score.

"We saw an opening in the film and we practiced that play. Rod squeezed through and blocked it. When I scored, it was a highlight to do it against South Carolina." Rembert and Rod McSwain went on to be teammates on the New England Patriots.

But Chuck McSwain was to be the hero of the South Carolina game with 25 carries for 151 yards, 110 in the second half. ESPN named him Amateur Athlete of the Week for his efforts against the Gamecocks.

The Tigers were now 11-0 and the team was presented with the invitation for the Orange bowl in the lockerroom in Columbia. There had been anticipation of such a berth, "But first," recalled Perry Tuttle, "we had to win the bowl game in the state."

Going to Florida to prepare for the Orange Bowl, the Tigers suddenly grasped what the season had come down to — a chance to play for the national championship. "So much had happened to this team," Tuttle continued, "that when it was all said and done, it came down to what we were made of."

What has happened to these young men over the years, continues to awe and inspire. Twenty-two went on to play professional football. The rest became pastors, CEOs, computer gurus, teachers, architects, community leaders and the list goes on.

"We had a whole slew of leaders and they stand tall even today. When I left Clemson for Buffalo", remembers Tuttle, "I couldn't wait to get back to South Carolina—that's where my teammates were—that's where my home was."

"In this time in our country's life," Tuttle continued, "I can't think of a better group of men to be around."

It continues to be a season to remember.

Cricket Stewart was a senior student-assistant in the Clemson Sports Information office in 1981. She now lives with her family in Virginia.

Jerry Gaillard's touchdown reception was a big factor in Clemson's 21-7 win over Maryland. It was the senior's first career touchdown in his final home game.

Men's Tennis

By Sam Blackman

All the elements for success are there.

The challenge for Coach Kriese is blending these parts together to meet the challenging goals he has set for his team.

"Our goal is to win the ACC and to be a top 15 program," said Head Coach Chuck Kriese, who will be entering his 28th season at Clemson.

"I never want to lower that bar. If I lower that bar to make people feel comfortable when they find it hard to achieve at a higher level, than I find it impossible to raise the bar later in the future.

"I think I was more proud of last year's team than any team I have coached at Clemson. We had many devastating injuries with former Tigers Josh Goffi and Darren Knight out of the lineup, and we went through an incredibly hard period. The temptation was to lower the bar to make everyone to feel good in the temporary. We lost matches during this period. Every match was hard but the expectations were high. We definitely took our hits. We found ourselves as a team in the hunt for the ACC when our injured returned, and we almost pulled off one of the greatest comebacks in our history — I never want to lower the bar."

Last season, Clemson was seeded eighth in the ACC Tournament and won the play-in-match and were winners in the quarterfinals and semifinals before losing in the championship match.

"The secret to having a successful team consists of four keys. They include good internal leadership, strong doubles teams, a quality top three singles lineup, and hungry newcomers to keep pressure on the veterans. We definitely have the athletes for this. When will we surface and hit our stride? I don't know, but they will hit their stride and perform to the level that Clemson tennis has come to expect."

Clemson has two starters returning and four lettermen from a team that finished 8-20 overall and 2-6 in the ACC last season. Clemson had many injuries last year to the upperclassmen, and because of this, the younger players received a great deal of experience.

"The leadership comes from Marco Gojanovic (senior), Micah Thompson (junior) and Damiisa Robinson (sophomore). All three players have weathered many storms, and they are focused on our goals and have competed for championships. Add to that group Jamin Thompson (junior) who played number-one for Miami (FL) before he transferred. Although he has been out, he is starting to hit his stride.

"The rookies are as fine as athletes as I have ever recruited," said Kriese. "Nathan Thompson is an exceptional athlete. He averaged 18.0 points per game as a high school basketball player. He was ranked as high as #12 in boys 16s in junior tennis. He is the youngest of three Thompson brothers on our team.

Marko Gojanovic led the 2001 Tigers with 23 singles wins.

"Sander Koning comes very prepared to compete at a higher level having reached the top five in his native country of Holland. His work ethic puts him definitely on track to compete for a top position and reach his goals as a professional later.

"Madreadi Skinner is our surprise recruit. I feel as though his athleticism puts him in a class with other players, and with experience, he should compete for a starting position.

"Matt Walton, from Burlington, NC, is a hard working, 'meat and potatoes,' walkon who is a surprise to everyone at practice, and he will keep the heat on the rest of the squad."

The doubles teams look excellent as Clemson has many options and promising teams. "Marco Gojanovic and Sander Koning will probably be teamed together as well as brothers Micah and Nathan Thompson. Damiisa Robinson is the best serve and volley player on the team. Madreadi Skinner and Jamin Thompson both should see action in the doubles lineup. The doubles should be solid; we have a great tradition in doubles.

"The one ingredient that will make everything blend together is the hunger that this team continues to show. They love the game, and they love competition. They love training and they love each other. The chemistry should be like cement and strong as steel and should be very hard to upset."

Marko Gojanovic, Micah Thompson, Damiisa Robinson and Jamin Thompson are Clemson's returnees. Gojanovic had a 23-24 record in singles and a 5-3 mark in the ACC. He also had a 20-19 record in doubles play.

"Marko is dependable, reliable and coachable. His coach-ability and attitude are his best traits. He is the rock and has done everything we have asked. Marko is the utility man and the glue that has and will hold our team together. We are happy with his leadership.

"Damiisa Robinson is an incredible athlete and he attacks very similar to some of the greats we have had in our past. He has a non-compromising attacking game. As Damiisa gains confidence, he will move up in the collegiate ranks."

Micah Thompson had a 13-19 record overall in singles last season. He also had a 7-4 mark in doubles play. "He is one of the hardest working individuals that I have ever coached and one of the best athletes. There is no doubt that he will step up in a premier role this year. He is coachable and works hard and inspires others by his actions.

Jamin Thompson saw limited action in singles and posted a 4-9 record in doubles. "I am proud of Jamin and he has continued to improve and grow through the extreme hardship and illness that has had that put him out of tennis for one year. Keep your eyes on this guy."

Another element Kriese is happy about is the addition of Mike Sprengelmeyer as an assistant coach. "Mike has the experience, knowledge and teaching ability to help us be successful. I am so glad to have Mike join our staff.

"I feel as if the motivation level is at a high peak. We have all the pieces that are necessary to complete the puzzle, the pieces that will help us get over the high bar of success that Clemson has set and will continue to set for those athletes that train here."

Sam Blackman is the associate sports information director at Clemson.

Women's Tennis

By Libby Kehn

Clemson women's tennis head coach Nancy Harris looks for the 2001-02 Tigers to have a successful season. The team returns seven of ten letterwinners, four of which are starters from last season. With the experience of the returning players, coupled with the addition of two key freshmen, the Clemson Tiger women's tennis team looks to improve on their record from last season.

Harris prides herself on the level of difficulty that the Clemson tennis program has maintained in terms of the schedule. "A tough schedule appeals to the top athletes, and certainly we want to recruit the best athletes we can get," said Harris. Clemson continues to play a difficult schedule this season, with 12 of the 23 teams they will face during the spring having participated in the NCAA Tournament in 2001. The non-conference schedule includes a match against Georgia, a quarterfinalist in last year's NCAA Tournament, and a spring break tournament in Hawaii featuring two teams that also earned invitations to the 2001 NCAA Tournament. The Atlantic Coast Conference schedule will be difficult as well, as six teams from the conference played in the NCAA Tournament in 2001. Harris looks at this challenging schedule as an asset to the program. "We look at the schedule as a great opportunity, because when you're playing teams that are highly ranked, it gives you the chance to be highly ranked."

Harris is excited about the prospect of having so many veteran players returning for the 2001-02 season. She looks forward to seeing the time and effort that those student-athletes have invested in taking their game to the next level paying off this season.

One of those veteran players is senior Anna Savitskaya, who played at the number one position for the Tigers last year. Harris describes Savitskaya, who is from St. Petersburg, Russia, as "one of the quickest athletes I've ever coached." Savitskaya, who was moved into the number one singles spot in the middle of the spring season after Clemson lost a key player, rose to the occasion. "We needed someone at that first position, whether or not they were going to win, to be strong enough to lead the team." Savitskaya has been plagued with injuries since she arrived at Clemson, and due to the permanence of her injury, Harris sees her playing in the middle of the lineup.

Fellow senior and co-captain Milena Stanoycheva (Sofia, Bulgaria) is expected to see action near the top of the singles lineup for the Tigers this season. Stanoycheva, a two-time National Junior College Champion, came to Clemson prior to her junior year. According to Harris, "She is a great competitor with a lot of maturity. She has taken her game a huge step up from last year to this year." Stanoycheva's ability to both lead and succeed will provide a great asset to the team in the 2001-02 season.

Three juniors also return to the Tiger lineup this season. Harris believes that Sunnie Harmon, Laurence Jayet and Ana Stiglic are prime examples of athletes who "came to the program two years ago and are finally now reaping the benefits of having worked hard on their games day in and day out."

The team's second co-captain is Sunnie Harmon, a junior from Greenwood, SC. Harmon's story is one of great success. She walked-on to the team her freshman year and this season finished third in the preseason challenges, "which is phenomenal for a walk-on," said Harris. "Sunnie never gives up. That's why she made the lineup. It was a matter of courage."

Laurence Jayet, from Le Cannet, France, "is the only women's player I know who goes through more than 10 pairs of shoes a year," said Harris. Jayet's speed, aggressiveness and exciting style of play make her the exact type of player that Harris looks to recruit. "I look for an athlete who is a great competitor and who is very team oriented. Laurence is a perfect example of that."

Ana Stiglic (Kensington, South Africa), who held the team's best singles record last season (16-6) and also recorded five ACC singles victories, also returns for the Tigers. Harris said, "Stiglic is a very intelligent and talented player. If I can just get her to realize how talented she is, she'll accomplish even greater things than she did last year." Harris looks for Stiglic to play somewhere in the middle of the lineup.

Two sophomores and two freshmen round out the rest of the Tiger roster. Harris hopes that they will see the advantages that hard work provided to their elder teammates and be motivated with the desire to see those same benefits in their own junior and senior years.

Anna Dolinska, a sophomore from Warsaw, Poland, is expected to be a tremendous asset to Clemson in the doubles competition this season. "Anna is a very talented player that has to develop some more. Once we can get her to just execute, and not think about anything else, she will be an outstanding player in singles as well."

Sophomore Ashlea Bowen came to Clemson from Lawrenceville, GA, after accepting the challenge that Harris gave her — to take her game to another level. Bowen immediately accepted the challenge. "Ashlea is willing to do whatever it takes to be successful for Clemson," said Harris. "I can not tell you how much I appreciate that attitude as a coach."

Freshman Alix Lacelarie (Villeneuve-Les-Beziers, France) is expected to be a prominent figure at the top of the lineup for the Tigers. According to Harris, Lacelarie is "a very poised player and a very gracious opponent. She is a real spectator player, and I think the fans are really going to enjoy watching her play." With Lacelarie's solid groundstrokes, beautiful serve and great hands, Harris looks for her to be a top-20 ranked player for Clemson.

The second Tiger newcomer is Richele LeSaldo,

a freshman from St. Thomas, Barbados. "Richele is a young talent. She is an extremely athletic and talented player, but her game still needs some additional development." Harris sees LeSaldo contributing mainly in the doubles competition this season for Clemson, but hopes that she will see some action in the singles lineup as well.

The team is going into the season with a positive outlook and high expectations. Included in the list of goals compiled at their preseason meeting is to achieve a top-three ranking in the ACC and a top 25 ranking in the NCAA.

Harris, as well, is optimistic about the 2001-02 team and the future of the Clemson program. "This year I feel really strong about the presence of the tennis program at Clemson. It is at the point that it is the foundation of all future great programs that will be here."

Harris said, "It does not matter how great an athlete is, how talented they are, or how fast they can run. It comes down to whether or not the athlete has the courage to do the things we're asking them to do." It is clear that the Clemson women's tennis team has the courage it will take to meet the expectations of Coach Harris and accomplish the goals they have set for themselves.

Tiger Band

By Kevin Johnson

When Clemson fans watch the pregame and halftime shows in Death Valley, they cannot miss the flags being twirled with flare and panache. These flags are part of the colorful history of football games in Death Valley and help add to the pageantry that is college football.

Clemson is privileged to have a flag line that has become known as one of the finest college flag lines in the country. Today, Tiger Band salutes its flag captains, Krissy Calabrese, Shannon Finnegan and Meredith Robillard.

Krissy Calabrese is in her first year as a flag captain, and her third year as a Tiger Band flag line member. She is a native of Mauldin, SC and a graduate of Mauldin HS. Calabrese is a junior majoring in textile science.

Shannon Finnegan is in her second year as a flag captain, and her third year as a Tiger Band flag line member. She is a native of Lawrenceville, GA and a graduate of Brookwood HS. Finnegan is a junior majoring in secondary mathematics education.

Meredith Robillard is in her fourth year as a flag captain, and her fifth year as a Tiger Band flag line member. She is a native of West Springfield, MA and a graduate of West Springfield HS. Robillard is a senior majoring in ceramic and materials engineering.

Tiger Band boasts an 11-member flag line. Joining the three flag captains on the flag line are: Caroline Bland, Carrie Bridges, Lauren Griffith, Crystal Mauldin, Erin Raynor, Andrea Robillard, Christy Season and Jenny Taylor.

Today's pre-game show is a virtual plethora of traditions. The Tiger Band will be playing traditional favorites and once again the "T" will be dotted by the Tiger Brotherhood Mother of the Year.

During the pre-game show, Tiger band will play, "Orange Bowl March," "Tiger Rag," "Washington Post," "God Bless America," "Star-Spangled Banner," and the Clemson alma mater. Dotting the "T" in Script Tigers today is Susan Fagan, Tiger Brotherhood's Mother of the Year. Fagan has greeted students for more than 40 years as an administrative assistant at Redfern Health Center on campus. She is married to Charles, with whom she moved to Clemson with in 1958. The couple has two daughters, Melanie and Debra (see page 49 for more information about Tiger Brotherhood's Mother of the Year).

Today, Tiger Band celebrates Homecoming 2001 with a show titled "Jazz-Rock Classics" featuring jazz-rock hits from the 1970s. Music selections include "Free" by Chicago, "Birdland" by Weather Report, "Get It On" by Chase and "So Very Hard To Go" by Tower of Power.

With today being homecoming, another wonderful long-standing tradition will be showcased on the field here in Memorial Stadium. Today, at the conclusion of the halftime show, Tiger Band will be joined on the field by more than 150 former members from across the country who have returned to Death Valley to perform in the Alumni Band and play "Tiger Rag" one more time.

Tiger Band is under the direction of Dr. Richard Goodstein and Dr. Paul Buyer, who is the percus-

Women's Track & Field

By Anne Miller

After a 2000-01 season that surpassed all expectations, the Lady Tiger track and field team is looking to enjoy another break-through year. In 2001, the team set five indoor and eight outdoor school records as well as three ACC records. The team posted a top-10 finish in both the indoor and outdoor seasons. Behind Cydonie Mothersill's 200m national championship, Jamine Moton's second-place finish in the shot put and third-place finish in the weight throw, as well as a third-place showing by the 4x400m relay team, the Lady Tigers posted an all-time best third-place national finish indoors. The Lady Tigers followed up that effort with a seventh-place finish at the NCAA outdoor championships, as the 4x400m relay team of Murray, Weston, Burgher and Mothersill won the national championship, and Moton picked up a second-place finish in the shot put.

Cross Country/Distance

The 2001 Lady Tiger cross country team will be a young but talented team. Clemson will only have one senior on the course in Perry Fields, and head coach Marcia Fletcher Noad is looking to several returnees and some freshmen to fill in the other top spots. Sophomores Renee Keydozsius, Kristi Toothman, Evan Ross, Tiffany Charles and Jennifer Zawislak are the other returning runners. That core of returning talent will be complimented by three incoming freshmen. Laura Ann Rukat, Shannon Day and Ann Cade will be vying for a spot in the top five.

Noad's goal for this year's team is to gain experience and confidence. This year's schedule was designed to give this team an opportunity to be competitive. "Our biggest races will be at the pre-NCAA meet in Greenville and the ACC championships that we will play host to on Oct. 27. I think the meets leading up to that point will be meets in which we will be competitive. I think that the cross country season will be a good boost for our middle distance and distance runners moving into the indoor and outdoor seasons. They should be able to get a certain level of confidence in the fall as well as feel a certain level of success." During the indoor and outdoor track season, Ross and Zawislak will be the core of the Clemson distance runners. Both Lady Tigers will compete in the 5,000m and 10,000m races, and Ross may compete in the 3,000m steeplechase this season. Shannon Day will add depth in the distance events as well.

Middle Distance

Senior Perry Fields will lead Clemson in the middle distance events after qualifying for the NCAA Championships in the 1500m last season. Fields will compete in both the 800m and 1500m, and is expected to have more consistent performances this year. Keydozsius, Toothman and Rukat will also compete in the middle distance events, and sophomore Rebecca White, who sat out the cross country season because of an injury, will add depth in the 800m.

Sprints

The Lady Tiger sprinters will be led by Terri Robinson, Marcia Smith and Shannon Murray. Robinson, a senior, was an ACC Champion and All-ACC honoree in the 60m indoors as well as the 4x100m and 4x400m relay outdoors. Smith was an All-American, an All-ACC honoree and ACC Champion in 2001, as she won the 400m indoor and helped the 1600m relay team to a conference and NCAA title outdoors. Murray was a member of the 4x100m relay team that finished fourth at the NCAA Championships and set a school record (43.62). Freshmen Randi Hinton and Danielle Whaley, as well as Antisha Anderson and Marquita Dortch are expected to add depth to the sprint events. Hinton and Whaley were state champions, while Anderson is a state record holder and Dortch be complimented by talented newcomers Keshia Haughton and Dortch, as well as Anderson, Lauren Nicholson and Katrina Moultrie. Dortch was a nationally ranked hurdler and was a Georgia state champion, and Haughton holds several state hurdle records. Moultrie will concentrate primarily on the 400m hurdles, while Anderson and Nicholson will provide depth to the hurdle group.

Jumps

Katie Pickett is the Lady Tigers' top returning point scorer in the high jump. Pickett finished fifth in the high jump at the conference meet, clearing 5-7. Newcomer Erica Jaros will provide depth in the high jump, but will also compete in the javelin. Jaros holds the North Penn indoor high jump record and earned honorable mention all-league outdoor honors in 1999 and 2000. In the triple jump, 2001 Outdoor ACC Champion Sheri Smith will lead the Lady Tigers. Freshman Gisele de Oliveira, who has competed as a member of the Brazilian national teams, will add depth to the triple jump roster. Both Smith and de Oliveira will also compete in the long jump along with All-ACC and NCAA qualifier Terri Robinson. Joana Costa will be the Lady Tigers' leader in the pole vault after clearing 12-3 1/2, and she will also compete in the other jump events.

Throws

Three-time All-American and five-time ACC Champion Jamine Moton returns to lead the Lady Tigers' throwing corps. Moton finished as the NCAA runner-up in the shot put indoor and outdoor, and posted a third-place finish in the weight throw at the indoor championships. Sophomore Mary Gosselin, along with freshmen Jacqueline Hudgins and Kenya Reed will add depth in the throws. Hudgins was a high school All-American and state champion, and Reed also claimed her state championship. Sophomore Elizabeth Lord will compete in the javelin throw outdoor.

Multi-events

Lauren Nicholson is the top returning heptathlete for Clemson. Nicholson finished ninth at the ACC Championships in 2001, with a career-best 4,418 points. Newcomer Antisha Anderson and transfer Keshia Haughton will add depth not only to the heptathlon area, but also in the jump, hurdle and possibly the relay events. Anderson was named the 2000 Gatorade Athlete of the Year and was a high school All-American, while Haughton finished third at the junior college national championships in the multi-events.

Overall

The Lady Tigers have also added a new assistant coach in Audrey Dempsey Branch. She will be primarily responsible for the sprinters, distance and middle distance athletes.

Despite losing several seniors who were ACC and NCAA scorers last year, Noad believes this year's team can only build upon last year's success. "We lost a lot of quality seniors from last year, but we have added a lot of good talent. Last year was a great year, and I think it gives us a new confidence going into this year. It gives the team a new standard to move toward."

Anne Miller is an assistant sports information director at Clemson.

was a member of a nationally-ranked 4x100m relay team.

Hurdles

ACC Champion and All-ACC honoree Kyana Elder will lead the Lady Tiger hurdlers. Elder won the 100m outdoor conference title, and was an All-ACC performer in the 60m hurdles indoor in 2000 and 2001.

Men's Track & Field

By Anne Miller

The Clemson men's track and field team is setting its sights higher as the Tigers take aim at a National Championship. After its third and fourth consecutive ACC titles, Clemson is looking forward to its chances at adding a national championship title to the Tigers' list of accolades. The Tigers are also looking to give to head coach Bob Pollock his 20th ACC title, as Clemson collected both league championships last season. The 2001-02 senior class has won five of six conference titles entering its final year of competition, and head coach Bob Pollock believes this year's senior class and team might be one of Clemson's finest ever. "This is a very solid senior class. They are very talented leaders with tremendous experience, and they bring in a solid nucleus of knowledge and strength. Hopefully the experience, leadership and guidance that they provide will be instilled in our talented younger student-athletes. The coaching staff is excited about this entire group of guys. The potential we have this year is extremely high," said Pollock. "Barring injuries, I think we will have one of the best teams that Clemson has ever produced."

Cross Country/Distance

Junior Jason Meany will lead a young Clemson cross country squad as the Tigers chase an ACC championship on their home course on Oct. 27. Meany was an All-ACC performer as a sophomore, then redshirted last season. Sophomore Scott Shaw should also help guide the younger members of the team after redshirting last season. Fellow sophomore David Adams, who was Clemson's top runner and finished 13th at the ACC Championships last year, will help form the nucleus of the Tigers' top five. Pollock looks for senior Travis Alexander, sophomore Mike Barton and sophomore Ryan Fenton to compete for spots among the top five. Redshirt freshman Derrick Wyatt should also be a contributor, as should true freshmen Matt Pimentel, Matt Gunn and transfer David Smith. Pimentel and Gunn enjoyed successful high school careers, while Smith transferred from Charleston Southern.

The indoor and outdoor distance events will also be led by Meany, who won the 5,000m at the ACC outdoor championships and finished fifth in the 10,000m. Shaw, Fenton, Alexander and Adams should add depth in the distance events.

Middle Distance

The middle distance group will be led by two All-ACC performers, senior Mike Connelly and junior Garrick Copes. Connelly enjoyed a solid season in the 800m last year as he finished fifth at the outdoor ACC championships, while Copes was a member the Tigers' top 4x400m relay team. After an injury-riddled year in 2001, sophomore Marcus Hodge should also be a strong contender for the Tigers. Mike Barton and Derrick Wyatt will also compete in the middle distance events for Clemson, rounding out the middle distance crew.

Sprints

The sprint events will continue to be the strength of the Clemson track and field program according to Pollock. The Tigers will look to a core of three sprinters who have international and Olympic experience. Senior Ato Modibo, a five-time All-American and the 1999 200m national champion, is in search of his second national title. He is joined by junior Jacey Harper, who is a nine-time All-ACC honoree, as well as redshirt freshman Dwight Thomas. Otto Spain, David Collins, Larry Griffin and Matt Thompson are expected to add depth and talent to the 2001 sprinting squad after solid season last year.

Clemson signed a talented freshman class that is expected to have an immediate impact for the Tigers. Airese Currie, Tye Hill, Ronald Richards, Warren Eure, Eugene Lee and Clifton Turner are expected to be the future of the Tigers sprinters. All of these freshmen were state champions, while Currie, Hill and Richards were high school All-Americans.

Hurdles

Three-time All-American and three-time ACC champion Todd Matthews returns to lead the Tiger hurdlers in 2002. Matthews was an automatic qualifier in the hurdles both indoor and outdoor last year. Fellow senior Ian Potter is expected to have a competitive final campaign, as he provisionally qualified for the NCAA championships indoors, but was hampered by a back injury during the outdoor season.

Sophomore Shauntae Lovings joined the team in January of 2001 and will provide experience and depth in the hurdle events, while freshmen high school All-Americans Cameron Akers and Michael Bolling are expected to add depth and talent to the Tiger hurdles.

Jumps

After obtaining All-America honors as a freshman, senior Kai Maull is on a mission to lead the Tiger long and triple jumpers. He suffered an injury early in the season last year forcing him to miss much of the season. However, he made a great comeback finishing fourth in the long jump and third in the triple jump at the ACC Championships, earning all-conference honors.

Maull will be complimented by sophomores Terrance McDaniel and Brit Barrow. McDaniel competed in the triple jump and high jump as a freshman, and finished fourth at the United States Junior National Championships in the summer of 2001. Barrow will add depth for the returning Tigers in the triple and long jumps, and freshmen Terrance Huey and George Kitchens will also add depth to the Tiger jumping roster.

Senior Doug Ameigh, an ACC Champion and all-conference selection, will lead the Tigers' high jumpers. Bryant Howe placed in the conference in the high jump in 2001, and has returned this year as a much stronger jumper.

Junior Ryan Lewis and sophomore Adam Klotzbach will be the Tigers' mainstays in the pole vault. Freshman Andrew Kessler will add depth in the vault after completing his high school career as a state champion.

Throws

Sophomores Brett Varner and Matt Lombardi return to lead the Tigers in the throwing events. Varner will compete in the hammer and weight throw during the indoor season, and Lombardi will double in the shot put and discus throw both indoor and outdoor. Redshirt freshman Colt Hodge is expected to do a tremendous job in the weight throw as well as the hammer and shot put. Freshman Derek Gilson will add depth to the Tiger throwers as he makes the adjustment from high school to college competition.

Multi-Events

Clemson returns sophomore Rick Hill and adds freshman Brent Hobbs and transfer Ryan Hunter. Hill posted a fifth-place finish in the ACC as a freshman decathlete, and he will be complimented by Hobbs, whose strongest events are the hurdles and long jump. Hunter, a transfer from Wallace State, is a solid pole vaulter, and may contribute in that event as well as the decathlon.

The Last Word

By Holli Armstrong

It was a chilly December day, and as Bill Hunter made his way from the post office toward Tillman Hall, his attention was immediately drawn to Bowman Field, where there appeared to be a pep rally taking place.

As Hunter approached the crowd of students, he began to make out their chants. Even today, Hunter can hear the crowd screaming, "Cock-a-doodle-doo, Cock-a-doodle-doo, Japanese Empire to hell with you!"

"I asked somebody walking up the other way what was going on," Hunter said. "He told me Pearl Harbor had been bombed, and I said, 'Where is Pearl Harbor?'" "He replied, 'I don't know. Maybe it is in Alaska somewhere.'"

It was an uncertain time, and the United States was preparing to enter a war it had tried to avoid. After the events of Dec. 7, 1941, the Clemson cadets packed their bags and said their good-byes. Before the war there were 3,500 cadets on campus; and about 300 remained once the war started.

Hunter, who is a doctor here in town, played football for Clemson in the fall of 1942. In the summer of that year, he recalls breaking rocks where the new stadium was being constructed. On opening day, about 4,000 fans cheered the Tigers on their first run down the Hill. In his pre-game speech, head coach Frank Howard told his players that he did not want to lose a single game in the newly constructed stadium. The Tigers did not disappoint Howard, easily defeating Presbyterian College 32-13.

Later in the season, Clemson faced archrival Furman, in a game that at the time was considered bigger than the South Carolina games today. Furman's all-conference running back broke free and was headed for the end zone. Hunter tackled him, and in the process protected the Tigers 12-7 lead. It was Hunter's proudest moment in pads, and he still talks about it when he gets together with football friends.

In addition to football, Hunter has made significant contributions to Clemson University and the state of South Carolina.

Today, Hunter logs many hours as chairman of the Calhoun Lecture Series, and has served on the Calhoun Honors College advisory council. He also conceived of, and founded, the Clemson Alumni Physicians Society. He has been president of the South Carolina Medical Association and named a distinguished alumnus of Clemson University and MUSC. Presently, Hunter writes a weekly column in the Sunday edition of the Anderson Independent. He also grows award-winning flowers, all while continuing to practice medicine.

With the 1942 season complete, and the fighter pilot college requirement lowered to a year, Hunter and several other Clemson students traveled to Atlanta, GA, to enlist. Hunter graduated from flight school in the fall of 1943, and spent the rest of the war on a carrier in Pacific waters. "Half of the squadron would be catapulted off the ship one morning and the rest would get to sleep in," Hunter said. "I didn't know my bunk was below where they catapulted the planes, so the first morning I got to sleep in, I got knocked out of my bunk. I thought we had been torpedoed."

Hunter, who joined IPTAY while at sea in 1943, occasionally thought about football and his teammates. Before Hunter left for war, Harry Franklin, who was a wingback, was the first football player to lose his life. At the time, people in Clemson thought the new stadium would be named Franklin Field, but when so many men did not come home, they decided on Memorial Stadium.

Other teammates of Hunter's were maimed and did not return to play football, and some chose not to play after the war. Others, like Butch Butler, could not stay away from the game.

Hunter remembered how Butler, who was drafted and sent to Fort Jackson, got to come back on the weekends and play football, because his commanding officer was a Clemson man.

Another one of Hunter's friends, Charles Cheezum, was riding the train through France to the Battle of the Bulge. The train stopped and Cheezum got off to get his cold men some wine. The train left without him, so Cheezum used his side arm to stop the next train, and he made it to the battle.

Hunter has his own stories to tell. "I was sitting in the intelligence office in the bow of the carrier thinking about life, and how brief it is. I started thinking about a lie I had told Coach Howard. At the closing of football practice you had to weigh in and weigh out, and I had a large frame. I fluctuated between 168-172, but I would sign in every day at 185," Hunter said.

"I wrote Coach Howard from the middle of the Pacific, and I told him I never weighed 185," said Hunter. "As soon as he saw me when I got back he said, 'You thought you were going to get killed out there, didn't you? You didn't want to go to your death with that lie on your soul, isn't that right?' He was delighted with it, because he felt like he caught me with something."

Hunter played football under Howard, was the team physician for a time and even served as his doctor. Hunter was also with him when he died. "The guy was brilliant, and he played the dumb country bumpkin," Hunter said. "It was a game he played. The man was an honor student in mathematics from the University of Alabama."

Howard also encouraged Hunter to pursue a career in medicine. As a freshman, Hunter was an electrical engineer, but during the war he was inadvertently refreshed in a flight surgeons' school. Hunter had never studied medicine, but managed to score in the top third of his class on the exam. Hunter changed his major to pre-med when he got home.

Hunter has delivered thousands of babies in the Clemson area, and has never regretted the decision he made that day. He also doesn't regret the day in 1942 when he met a 5-foot-1 Delta Airlines stewardess named Jane that he felt resembled Greta Garbo. "She sent word by a mutual friend that I didn't like her very much, and she was concerned about why I hadn't kissed her," Hunter said. "I thought, 'My God this is a fast woman,' and I had never kissed a girl but I decided I would show her." Hunter then asked her how many children she wanted to have, and the couple decided on six.

The couple had six children along with 10 grandchildren, who often fight over his four seats on the 50-yard line. Jane Hunter was also picked as a homecoming sponsor in 1947. She put on a fur coat and rode in the back of a convertible in the pouring rain. She was three months pregnant at the time and battled a cold for the rest of her pregnancy.

"My wife often tells me that I have done just about everything I've ever wanted, and she is right," Hunter said. "I've often wondered why I continued in football, but the sport gave me discipline and confidence. I couldn't have gone to college without it."

Holli Armstrong is the sports editor for The Tiger, the Clemson student newspaper.

Dr. Bill Hunter was a member of the Tiger football team in 1942 and then after graduation in 1943 went off to flight school where he trained for combat in the Pacific.
